HANGMAN'S DAY.

Sandy Mathews Executed at Memphis for the Murder of Essick Polk.

Wm. L. Moon Cheats the Gallows by Taking Morphine.

Jas. E. Hanvey to Hang To-Morrow—The Crimes Expatiated on the Gallows—Brief Respite.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 2.—Sandy Mathews was hanged at 12:30 to-day. After eating a hearty supper last night he conversed with friends, read the Bible and spent the evening in devotions. He went to bed as the bells tolled midnight. He was up at daybreak. He said prayers and devoured a hearty breakfast, talking cheerfully to the jailer. He said he felt sure of salvation, and, on going to the scaffold, said he was not afraid of death. The gallows was an ordinary trap. The fall was about five feet. He died with hardly a struggle.

THE CRIME.

The murder for which Sandy Mathews was hung stands almost alone for atrocity in the criminal history of Tennessee. In November last year he became jealous of Essick Polk, a colored well-digger, who he pretended to think was too intimate with his wife. Mathews and Polk happened to visit Memphis on the same day and met there. She was detained all night, but Polk returned to his home, which was a plantation near Lucy Station, about 20 miles on the C. & O. Railroad. Soon after returning home Polk visited the house of Mathews, who lived near, and informed him that his wife would not return until the following evening. Mathews at once become enraged and accused Polk of having stolen his wife's affections. Polk declared his innocence and remarked he would not remain another moment in a house where he had been so unjustly accused. He then turned to leave the room, when and struck him from behind. Polk's head was split in two by the blow and death was instantaneous. Mathews went deliberately to work without loss of time to cover the evidence of his crime. His wife's step-daughter, about 16 years of age, who was a witness of the entire transaction, was forced to assist him. Together they carried the body to where a hole about four feet square and as many feet deep was dug in the rear of the house. The girl held a candle while Mathews chopped up the body with his spade.

MATHEWS GRASPED AN AX

THE MEMBERS WERE AMPUTATED

one at a time and cast into the hole, the body being thrown in last. The whole was finally covered with loose earth. The following February the girl made a full confession to her employer, and told where the body of the missing man could be found. Her story was credited when Polk's bones were unearthed, and the coat found was recognized as his. Chief of Police Dawes of this city was at once notified and sent an officer to arrest Mathews where he was quietly living in the southern portion of the city. He confessed a few hours later, and declared that he knew he ought to be hung. His conviction was easy, and he was sentenced to be hung. His case was appealed to the Supreme Court, which affirmed the decision.

HIS SPEECH.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 2.—Sandy Mathews, colored, was hanged in the County Jail yard this afternoon at 1 o'clock. The execution was witnessed by fully 6,000 people, the majority of whom were colored. The condemned man made a speech from the gallows, in which he confessed the killing and implored his hearers to repent their sins and go with him to heaven. His neck was broken by the fall.

DETAILS OF THE EXECUTION.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 2.—Sandy Mathews, colored, was hanged at 1 o'clock in the County Jail yard. The gallows had been erected in the southern portion of the jail yard and was built high enough to give a full view to the crowd that jammed the streets running parallel with the jail. Mathews slept well last night. He partook of a hearty breakfast this morning. He bade farewell to his wife about eleven o'clock and began making preparations for hanging. Ten weeks ago he embraced Catholicism, and was attended in his cell by the Rev. Father Lucius, of St. Mary's Catholic Church. He called for his dinner at noon and ate heartily. Afterwards he smoked a cigar. At half-past 12 o'clock he was brought from his cell and conveyed to the scaffold, where he addressed the crowd for twenty minutes in a disconnected speech, confessing to having killed Polk, and, at the same time, imploring his hearers to repent their sins ere too late, and be forgiven as he had been done. He then knelt and repeated the Lord's Prayer, after which the Rev. Father Lucius said the prayer for the dying. The condemned man's hands were then handcuffed, his legs, arms and ankles strapped, the black cap adjusted, and as he uttered the words, "Farewell, friends; farewell, world," the drop was sprung and his body shot down. His neck was broken by the fall and there was a very slight convulsion of the body. Six hundred tickets had been issued for admission to the jail yard. The crowd on the outside that witnessed the execution numbered not not less than six thousand, nearly all of whom were colored. During his speech many colored people responded to his implorations by shouting "Bless the Lord. Amen."

Will Hang Alone.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARROLLTON, GA., June 2.—James E. Hanvey will positively hang here this afternoon. The gallows are in a public place nearly a mile east of the Court-house in a field. William M. Moon was also to hang at the same hour, but he took a dose of morphine with a suicidal purpose last night. Three physicians are now laboring, with no hope of saving him. He is cold to the knees and his finger nails are blue. He says he has religion and he is ready to die. An immense crowd is in town and the excitement is intense. Hanvey will probably hang alone.

HANVEY'S CRIME.

CARROLLTON, GA., June 2.—On July 2, 1881, James E. Hanvey and Arthur McMullen were together at Benson's grocery, just beyond the corporate limits of Carrollton. Both were at least partially intoxicated. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon McMullen mounted his horse, apparently intending to ride to Carrollton. While on horseback he remarked: "My horse can outrun any horse in the State, and whoever says he can't tells a d—d lie." Hanvey, who was in the house at the time, said: "Don't call me a d—d liar." McMullen replied: "I didn't call you a d—d liar. I said my horse could outrun any horse in the State, and whoever says he can't tells a d—n lie." Hanvey walked through the door while this explanation was being made, took his knife from his pocket, opened it, walked up to McMullen and without another word about one inch to the right of the breast bone, and through the fourth intercostal space, the blade penetrating the cavity. McMullen threw his hands up, exlaiming "He has cut me!" and immediately fell from his horse against the grocery. He was carried to a neighboring house, and died the next day.

PLUNGED IT INTO HIS BREAST

Hanvey after committing the deed made an effort to flee the country.

THE SHERIFF WAS NOTIFIED

of what had transpired. Placing his dogs upon the track of the fugitive, he soon overtook him, lying in a fence corner. He was placed on trial for his life. Solicitor-General Reid and Cobb and Cole conducted the prosecution. The speech of Col. Reed as to whether drunkenness could be an excuse for crime is considered by competent critics as one of the finest legal arguments, and must have been convincing to the jury. At the close of the trial Judge Harris reviewed the case in a charge most clear, forcible and comprehensive. Hanvey was highly respected and left a wife and one child. His greatest fault was his passion for drink. His aged father and mother, grief-stricken and heads bowed down, sat beside him througout the trial.

MOON'S CRIME.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARROLLTON, GA., June 2.—W. L. Moon, who hangs here to-day for the murder of John B. Ward, is 40 years old, slender and in poor health. He worked in Ward's saw-mill, near here, and he and Ward fell out about a lewd woman. On the 4th of January, 1881, he bought a gun, started out to kill a buck and said Ward was the buck. He found Ward that night in company with Liza Robinson, the lewd woman referred to, and attacked him. Ward secured a gun, but Moon promised to leave and the gun was given up. As Ward turned unarmed, Moon emptied the contents of the gun in his back, killing him instantly. He was sentenced last fall to hang in January, but the case went to the Supreme Court. He says he is prepared to meet his Master.

A Brief Respite.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, GA., June 2.—The execution of Moon and Hanvey at Carrollton, has been stayed for twenty-four hours. Moon took poison and is dying, and if he dies Hanvey will be hanged to-morrow. If he recovers both will be hanged.

Guilty of Murder.

CATLETTSBURG, KY., June 2.—In the case of George Ellis, one of the three men convicted of the murder of the Gibbons family at Ashland last December—the man by whose turning State's evidence Wm. Neal and Ellis Craft were proven guilty of the murder—the jury at 11 o'clock this forenoon returned a verdict of manslaughter, with imprisonment in the penitentiary for life.

BERLIN, June 2.—Bebel, the Socialist, was rearrested for contravening the law of October.

Pool Selling Illegal.

DETROIT, MICH., June 2.—Recorder Swift, this morning, after a careful examination of the law prohibiting the selling of pools on horse races, ball games, etc., held it good and fined several parties who had been convicted under the admitted State facts. The case will probably be taken to the Supreme Court, but business is likely to be wholly stopped meanwhile, as the Recorder intimated that he should severely punish any one engaging in it while the case was pending in the Supreme Court. There is no probability that the Recorder's decision will be reversed by the higher tribunal.

Rearrested.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The U. S. Marshal of Brooklyn rearrested Charles H. Smith on a warrant, charged with stealing bond plates. The accused was arraigned before the U. S. Commissioner, and released on $5,000 bail, to appear for examination on Thursday.

The Debt Reduction.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2.—The public debt reduction for eleven months is one hundred and forty millions. It will be for the year over one hundred and fifty millions. At this rate the debt will be paid off in ten years. The reduction in May is fifty per cent more than in May last year.

CHICAGO PUBLIC WORKS.

Major W. H. H. Benyaurd leaves for Chicago to-morrow to take the place of Maj. Lydecker, in charge of the Public Works there.

CONTESTED ELECTIONS.

The Republicans intend to keep up the fight on the contested election cases as long as any material is left. Monday will probably be given over to the passage of bills under suspension, and by that time another case or two will be ready. They count upon strengthening the Republican backbone in the South by this, making large gains therein in the fall Congressional contest.

CAMPAIGN FUND.

Hubbell is receiving very satisfactory responses to the circulars calling for a campaign fund. The responses are very prompt, and in many cases exceed the amount asked. It looks as though the railroads west of Chicago killed the goose which lays the golden egg by asking Howe too much for a fast train and there is doubt about putting it on.

Lieutenant Danenhauer.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Lieut. Danenhauer, accompanied by his father and Tong Sing, paid an official visit to the Navy Department this morning, reporting his return home and presenting a detailed account of expenditures. He also brought the log book of the Jeannette, Capt. De Long', broken rifle, another gun belonging to his party (supposed to belong to Collins), and certain other articles left in the cachet by Engineer Melville in his search for De Long. These articles, together with several geological specimens, were turned over to Commodore Walker by the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation. Lieut. Danenhauer had quite a conference with Secretary Chandler, and afterward held an informal reception for the benefit of his many friends anxious to congratulate him on his safe return. Secretary Chandler received him cordially, and told him to take a long rest, adding that when he had recovered from the fatigue of the journey he would like him to make a detailed report.

Conkling's Statement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 2.—To prove the falsehood of the Kingston (N. Y.) Freeman and Gen. Geo. H. Sharpe's allegations that Conkling told an untruth when he said he went to Albany after his resignation to canvass for re-election against his own wishes, but at the urgent solicitation of immediate friends,'Conkling to-day publishes in the Herald letters from United States Senator John P. Jones, ex-State Superintendent of Insurance John F. Smithe, ex United States Senator T. C. Platt, ex-United States Marshal Louis F. Bayne, C. M. Dennison, of Utica, N. Y., A. P. Johnson, of Utica, N. Y., and Police Commissioner S. B. French, New York City, all asserting that Conkling was called from Washington after his resignation to attend a consultation among his friends, at which the above-named, Gen. Sharp and others were present, and that all insisted he should go to Albany and canvass for re-election, Sharp insisting more than any other upon that policy.

Capitol Chatter.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The President returns to-morrow. There is talk of Conkling for Secretary of the Treasury, in case Folger is nominated for Governor of New York, which now seems probable.

Blaine and Trescott are back, but say little of the result. It is apparent Peru received them with open arms and was hopeful as to their mission, but Chili's course was very cool. Peru refused Chili's terms offered through Trescott. The trip may finally lead to a compromise and peace. They say Montero, Vice-President of Peru, has but 600 troops. They made no report to the State Department here.

Reports from Pennsylvania say the independent ticket is growing stronger than even its friends anticipated.

Bonded Spirits Bill Investigation.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The examination of Atherton was resumed before the Windom committee. Witness was asked if he had given any further thought to the question which he declined yesterday to answer, and replied he had and must still decline to answer. He had some feeling on the subject and did not care to drag an innocent man before the committee simply to give him the opportunity to prove his innocence. But two parties approached him, and they were both lawyers. "One offered his services as attorney, and they asked if we were going to employ anyone. Neither of them mentioned the names of any Senator or member of Congress, or claimed he could influence them."

Stagg, of St. Louis, was next examined. Witness knew of no fund to be used to influence legislation. Witness had also been approached by two attorneys who sought to be retained to present the claims of the distillers to Congress. He declined, however, to give their names. Neither of these attorneys offered to secure the influence of any Senator or member. No proposition was made by either of them that would not be considered perfectly legitimate. He had never heard that any person whatever was employed by the distilling interests except Col. Wharton and Col. Moulton as their paid attorneys.

Col. Wharton, of Louisville, was next examined. Witness was employed by the Kentucky distillers as their paid attorney. His compensation was fixed at $5,000, out of which he paid all his expenses, with the exception of $50 for speeches which they had distributed and $35 for printing a brief. He knew of no other expenditures by the association. He had been approached by two attorneys, but had declined to engage their services. Did not feel any necessity required it, and was not authorized to engage them. In fact, he thought he had plain sailing until their bill reached the Senate and the cry of fraud and corrupt influences was raised. Witness declined to give the names of the attorneys who had approached him. He would dislike to have it known that he sought to be employed and was refused, and therefore desired to respect the feelings of these gentleman, although perhaps they had not been over-modest in their estimate of the value of the services they could render. Witness had never been approached by any journalist or correspondent for any other purpose than to obtain information in regard to the proposed legislation. They had always been extremely courteous, and had shown great intelligence in thoroughly treating the subject. No intimation of any kind or threats had ever come to him that any newspaper man would use his influence against the bill if he was not feed. He knew of no member of Congress or Senator who had ever been promised or had ever asked any consideration whatever for favoring the bill. Witness added emphatically, "Gentlemen, I never presented a case in court with cleaner hands than I have presented this one before Congress."

Adjourned.

The Presidency of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The Senate this morning was without a presiding officer owing to the absence of David Davis. He designated Ingalls to act for the day. The point was immediately made that the acting Vice-President had no right to make such a designation, and that the President would have to be elected by the Senate. The parliamentarians were instantly ready with precedents for and against the power of the President of the Senate to make the appointment. Meanwhile the Secretary of the Senate acted as the presiding officer. Mr. Morgan said they viewed the position that the acting Vice-President could so delegate his authority with extreme alarm, since President Arthur might be stricken down to-day and Mr. Ingalls might then succeed to the Presidency without having ever been elected to the Senate. Brown, who resides at the same hotel with Davis, gave a touching reason for the absence of the acting Vice-President of the United States. Brown said Davis had for years supported a colored man who is very old and probably in his last illness. He lived at some distance from the city and Judge Davis had gone to see him once more and to inquire whether there was anything that could be done for him. Mr. Brown thought the reason entirely justifiable and noble. Mr. Morgan said that to avoid difficulty he should move to adjourn until Monday, which would leave Davis' tenure perfect to the succession in the event of any accident to President Arthur. The difficulty as to the absence of the Vice-President was finally settled by adjournment until Monday.

The Contested Elections.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—It is expected the House will vote this evening on the Lowe-Wheeler case, seating Lowe. It is probable it will take up the Smith-Shelley case to-morrow. Smith, the Republican contestant, it will be remembered, died a few weeks since. It is probable, however, the House will act in the case, declaring Shelley, Democrat, not elected and the seat vacant. If this is done it will leave the House with but 290 members, 150 Republicans, 129 Democrats, 7 Greenbackers and 2 Readjusters, but as the last nine vote mostly with the Republicans it will give that side fifteen more than a quorum. No action has yet been taken by the committee on the Frost-Sessinghaus case.

Another Move for Guiteau.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—This morning Reed, counsel for Guiteau, presented a petition to the District Supreme Court in general term asking for a rehearing of the case of his client. The application is upon purely technical grounds and embodies liberal citations from the official record of the trial. Judge Cartter said a decision would be rendered upon the petition as soon as the Judges could consult upon it, probably to-morrow morning.

The Star Route Cases.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Col. Bliss began the opening address to the jury in the Star Route cases this morning.

XLVII. CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The Senate adjourned until Monday.

House.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Immediately after the reading of the journal the House resumed consideration of the Alabama contested election case, Lowe vs. Wheeler.

Mr. Thompson, of Iowa, submitted an argument in favor of the claims of the contestant, and incidentally denied the statement made by Mr. Wheeler last evening to the effect that he had not been fairly treated by the Committee on Elections.

An Experimental Trip.

CHICAGO, June 2.—Specials from Northern and Central Wisconsin indicate that the summer was ushered in yesterday morning with heavy white frosts, but that no damage resulted.

The propeller St. Magnus, the first large craft through the Welland Canal, arrived here yesterday, and is chartered for Europe with a large cargo of corn on a through rate. She is 180 feet long, 800 tons burden, and this trip is an experiment upon which depends the construction of a line of ten similar steamers to ply between St. Lawrence and Chicago.

THE DUNKARD CHURCH.

A Wabash, Ind., special says: The National Conference of the Dunkard Church is now being held at Arnold, near here, and is one of the greatest ever held in Indiana, 20,000 people being on the grounds.

NOMINATED FOR CONGRESS.

A Ft. Wayne special says: Hon. Robert Lowry was nominated for Congress by the Democrats of the Twelfth District at Kendallville, yesterday.

SALE OF BLOODED CATTLE.

A Harristown special says: The blooded cattle sale of Pickerell, Thomas & Smith yesterday, resulted in the aggregate of $16,830 for 69 animals, an average of $244. Some of the Rose of Sharon breed sold for $600 and Constance 98 for $1,000.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

A Little Rock dispatch says a tragedy is reported from Yell county. Lazarus Brooks and Jas. K. McGhee, farmers, quarreled over a land suit. McGhee learning that Brooks would win it, became furious with passion and found him in the woods hunting lost cattle, in company with his 15-year-old boy. After a few words he shot him dead, and, as the boy started to run, sent a shot after him, breaking his arm, but not checking his flight. McGhee then reloaded his gun, and, placing it against the forehead of his prostrate victim, shot the charge through his head. He then walked off and is still at large.

THE MISSISSIPPI.

A New Orleans special says the Mississippi River is very full and declining slowly at Vicksburg. The decline here since the highest point, March 27, is only 26 inches. Water is still running through every damaged crevasse in the State and very extensive areas of plantations are still inundated. The alarm is occasioned by the reports of the rise in the tributary rivers between St. Louis and here.

TEN PER CENT MORE.

The Strikers Persist in Their Demands for Higher Wages.

The Classes of Workmen and Their Respective Earnings—The Situation in Other Cities.

The situation at the rolling-mills remains unchanged. With the exception of the McDonald Mill, at Main and Miller streets, which is a non-union mill, the Harrison Wire Works, at Twenty-third and Papin streets, which is a specialty mill, and one large hammer at the Helmbacher Forge, on Columbus and Lami streets, the mills have quit running, and the usually busy scenes of which they are the centers are things of the past. The Laclede Mill in North St. Louis is a deserted institution. The Meysenburg mill in East St. Louis has not yet relit its fires, and the indications, which on Tuesday seemed to promise an early settlement of the labor troubles at this mill, have assumed an altogether different shape. The men have presented their new scale to the managers for signature, but the managers are firm in their determination not even to consider it. As has been stated, this is a bar-mill strike and does not even remotely involve the steel and iron workers in other lines of the steel and iron industry. The total number of men throughout the country who have quit work is enormous. With the exception of the incident at the Panhandle Railroad crossing, about twenty-five miles from Joliet, last night, where fifty strikers attacked a car of the Chicago and Alton train having on board twenty-five non-union workers of the Joliet Iron Company, no act of violence or turbulence has so far been committed. The strikers in St. Louis claim to be as indignant over the action of the Joliet strikers as all other citizens naturally are, and assert that these men do not represent the feeling of the strikers at all. They insist that the solution of the present trouble will be brought about by peaceable means entirely. The $50,000 now in the association treasury at Pittsburg will go far, they say, to keeping the unemployed strikers independent, and long before this sum and the savings of the individual strikers can become exhausted they anticipate that the mills will accede to their demands and matters will go on as before. To give an idea of the kind of labor performed in bar mills and the wages paid there, the following will be of interest:

THE CLASSES OF OPERATIVES.

The pig-iron is first melted in a furnace called the "puddling" furnace. While the iron is in a fluid state it is worked with a tool by an operative called the "puddler." The puddler is assisted by his helper. The puddler must determine the proper moment to "ball" the iron and to withdraw it from the furnace. The iron is taken from the furnace in a mass that has the shape of a ball; three or four balls is the product of a "heat."

This total product weighs 470 pounds; the puddler's day's work, is when the mill runs a single turn, six heats or ten hours; when the mill runs double turns, it is five heats or eight hours; these are the terms laid down by the Amalgamated Association. The average daily wages earned by "puddlers" is $7 50; of this amount he retains two-thirds, and the balance goes to his helper. The puddlers heretofore have been receiving wages at the rate of $6 per ton. Their present demand is for $6 50 per ton, the pay of the helper to be divided on the proportion mentioned.

After the iron leaves the puddling furnace it goes to the "squeezer," a rotary machine which takes the ball and presses it into the shape of a cylinder adjusted to a size that will admit its introduction into a series of grooves or rolls which press it into what are called "muck" bars. The labor just described is performed by an operative who is known as the "muck" roller. He is assisted by helpers called "roughers" and "catchers." The "muck" rollers' present wages are at the rate of 75c per ton. He pays his own help usually. The demand of this class of work is for an increase of ten per cent over present pay. The average day's earnings of muck rollers is about $6 net. The iron, after it has passed through the hands of the muck roller, is cut into bars about two feet long. This work is done by ordinary laborers who are not eligible for admission into the Amalgamated Association. After being cut into bars the iron is piled, five or six two-feet bars usually constituting a pile. Then it is ready for the heating furnace. It is permitted to remain in this furnace until the short muck bars have arrived at a welding heating, when it is withdrawn from the furnace and passed through a series of finishing bars. The work of heating is done by an operative who is called the "heater," and whose duties are both responsible and onerous. He has his own assistant.

After the iron leaves the heating furnace it comes into the hands of the "roller," who is the most important and best paid of all the skilled labor in the mill. The roller supervises the progress of the bars through the rolls, and after it leaves his hands it is ready for the market. Ten tons of bars is an average day's work for a roller, and the price per ton which he receives is usually $3 15, so that he earns over $30 per day. Out of this he pays the "heater," the "rougher," "catchers" and all other help necessary to the final manipulations which the iron undergoes. The average day's earnings of rollers range from $12 to $15. The demand of this class of skilled labor is for an advance of 10 per cent over previous prices. In mills like the Helmbacher Forge and Rolling-Mill, which turn out axles, another class of skilled laborers called "hammerers" is employed, who earn from $4 to $4 50 a day. These men also demand an increase of 10 per cent. The proportion of skilled and unskilled labor in rolling mills is from one-fourth to one-fifth, but on account of the fact that the ordinary laborers are dependent for their jobs upon the continued employment of the skilled laborers who have been described, of course, when these latter lay down their tools the unskilled laborers are obliged to quit too, and manage as best they may. The standpoint taken by the strikers was given in these columns on yesterday and need not be repeated. It is in effect that the quality of coal, the lack of opportunity to secure employment in St. Louis readily and the insalubrity of our climate necessitate them to ask for higher wages than those paid in Pittsburg.

AT CHICAGO.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 2.—There is no material change in the situation at Irondale this morning. All the men are still out. President Jarrett has not arrived, and a telegram has been received stating that he will not come on as expected. The corresponding secretary, Pat Carmody, of the Ironmakers' Association here, has just received the following dispatch from President Jarrett at Pittsburg:

"My instructions being only advisory, you are at liberty to stop provided that they all stop."

Mr. Carmody has also received the following telegram from Vice-President J. C. Bullock, Bay View, Milwaukee:

"Do not work unless they sign the scales. We are out, and will stop out until they all sign. I will call them out."

The indications now are that the men will stick out until the manufacturers give in. The men claim that they have a half-million dollars in the treasury at Pittsburg. The men also claim that the steel and rail men will come to their financial aid when they need it. About 1,100 men are out of employment.

AT BAYVIEW.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., June 2.—Two thousand men at the Bayview rolling mills are out on a strike. All the mills are closed except the rail works of the North Chicago Rolling Mill Company, which will run until Saturday. The manufacturers here, as elsewhere, claim the strike is ill-advised, and that if the employers yield to the terms demanded it would involve a loss of $1 50 to $2 a ton because of the depressed condition of the iron market.

THE SITUATION.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, June 2.—The result of the great iron strike here this morning was as follows: In and about Cincinnati 2,000 iron-workers are out of work; Ironton, 1,000; Pomeroy, 200; Massillon, 130; Wellsville, 250; Springfield, Ill., 1,000; at Akron, Ohio, and Terre Haute, Ind., a shut-down is expected at any moment. At Zanesville, Ohio, non-union men are working in the mills without interruption. At Steubenville, Ohio, 94 are out; 175 employes of the Panhandle Railroad shops have been discharged. At Urichville, Ohio, 130 men have been suspended from work on the Panhandle Railroad.

THE RIOT IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, June 2.—The wages which the iron-workers are striking against are as follows: Rail feeders, $1 75 per day; helpers, $2; puddlers, $4 50 to $5; nailers, $; rollers, $8 to $10. They demand ten to fifteen per cent advance. The Knights of Labor have taken a friendly interest in the brickmakers' strike, and propose a conference for compromise and conciliation. They are representing the interests of the strikers. The employers have given no answer, and are not much inclined to treat with the men, who have been troublesome and evasive. The attack of the dock laborers at Bridgeport last night upon the Chicago and Alton train was well executed and evinced careful planning. Though roughly armed with sticks, clubs, pieces of iron and stones, the number of broken heads attest their effectiveness. Three had their skulls laid bare by vicious blows, and half a dozen others were crippled or hurt in various degrees. None of the injured are likely to die, even Judge Pillsbury being in a fair way to recover at the last account. The rioters quickly fled when their vengeance was satisfied. The police were on the scene and have made several arrests, including James O'Brien, John O'Neil and John Frawley, all on suspicion. A dispatch from Dwight says one of the rioters was accidentally shot in the forehead. The witnesses of the affair are being locked up. David Miller, of Dwight, who was with Judge Pillsbury, says the shot which struck him was fired from inside the car, but none of his party saw the man who fired it. It is believed, however, that important clues are in the hands of the police and the miscreants will be brought to justice.

Sawyers' Strike.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WINONA, MINN., June 2.—All the lumber mills here are shut down because of the strike by the sawyers, who demand an increase of twenty-five cents a day. Five hundred men are out.

The Tanners' Strike.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 2.—The striking tanners in this city failed to accomplish their object and are asking to be reinstated. Few are being taken back.

ELIXIR OF OPIUM.

The Cause of all Mrs. Plympton's Strange Stories.

A Beauteous Lady's Distress—Doctor Bauer's Statement—Addicted to Opium.

Mrs. H. L. Plympton, of Denver, Col., registered at the Hotel Hunt last night. She was previously registered at the Planters' as Mrs. F. F. Plympton, and yesterday related to the detective and police a strange story regarding the attentions paid her by a man named Van Deman and another known as Crawford, through whose attentions she alleges to have been swindled out of about $400. This morning a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH called at Hotel Hunt and asked an interview with the lady in question. In response an answer was sent that the lady was engaged with Dr. Joseph L. Bauer, but would meet the reporter in five minutes in the ladies' parlor. At the expiration of the period named the reporter was quietly confronted by Mrs. Plympton, and was scarcely prepared for the revelation of beauty that burst upon his astonished vision. Mrs. Plympton is tall and magnificently developed, having a figure of which the Grecian gods might will feel envious. This morning she wore a black velvet dress, with an overdress or basque of black figured silk, shirred and puffed about the waist. She had beautiful ornaments of gold and a large diamond ring upon her finger, and altogether showed evidences of considerable wealth. Her hat was large and of white straw, dotted with white beads, feathers and ornaments. Mrs. Plympton has a round, plump face, black eyes, black hair and a swarthy complexion, giving evidences of life in the sunshine. On greeting the reporter, she said:

"Please do not add to my misery by writing more newspaper gossip. I am already broken down in health and spirits, but I expect any amount of trouble from the journalistic statements already made."

"I only desire to know whether there is any truth in the statements made by the morning papers concerning you?"

"Alas, it is too true. I told those reporters my story, but they faithfully promised to protect my reputation and not to make unnecessary display of my misfortunes."

"Why did you leave the Planters'?"

"Because I had been robbed of all my possessions and had no money wherewith to make a settlement. Detective Hennessey brought me here, with the understanding that I would be better enabled to remain and meet my bills."

"How did you happen to meet Van Deman?"

"He made my acquaintance upon the train at Denver. He treated me exceedingly courteously until Kansas City was reached, when he essayed to purchase my sleeping car tickets. There he brought in one ticket and said that the Pullman was crowded and he could only purchase one berth. Then I replied that I should occupy the berth alone, for I was a respectable married woman and could have nothing to do with such a programme. I also suggested that he could either go forward to the reclining chairs or the engine, for I certainly would not entertain his presence for one moment. Later the conductor appeared, and Van Deman and himself played cards together until after midnight, finally retiring in an intoxicated condition, and it is my opinion that the conductor and Van Deman were in league with each other."

"After this why did you accept the assistance of Mr. Van Deman next day?"

"Because I did not know what I was doing."

With this Mrs. Plympton bowed her head and commenced to weep bitterly. Presently the reporter inquired:

"Where is Van Deman now?"

"He resides in St. Louis, and claims to have desk room in somebody's office here. That is all I know about him."

"Are you in the habit of traveling alone?"

"Yes, frequently. Being troubled with a female complaint I have made numerous trips to New York City, but never encountered thieves before."

"By whom were you treated in New York city?"

"First, by Dr. Marion Sims, who accomplished a cure. On my second visit I was treated by the Drs. Guernsey, father and son, who are known throughout the country. On my third visit I was treated by the physician of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, whose name I have forgotten; but I am perfectly accustomed to travel alone."

"Have you telegraphed your husband yet?"

"No, sir; because he lives on a ranche and could not possibly receive the message inside of three days; and if he should, I am certain there would be no end to my sorrows. A gentleman who knows me called this morning and gave me all the money I desired. Of the amount I sent $20 25 to the Planters', and the balance will take me Eastward."

"You do not appear well?"

"No, sir; I cried all night, and this morning I am completely broken."

Dr. Bauer came into the parlor at this juncture and interfered, suggesting that his patient was in no condition to be conversed with upon any subject, especially that of her recent troubles. This saying, he conducted Mrs. Plympton to her room, and shortly afterwards returned.

"What is the matter with Mrs. Plympton?" inquired the reporter.

"She is hysterical and I cannot permit her to be talked to."

"What else besides hysterics?"

"She is under the influence of McMullin's Elixir of Opium, and has no idea what she is talking about."

"Is she addicted to the use of opium?"

"She is, and is now completely under its influence. Therefore I think the newspapers should not take advantage of her situation."

It is known that Mrs. Plympton is accustomed to the use of opium, and is really an honest woman. A gentleman from Main street vouched for her this morning at the hotel and gave her $100. She will remain under treatment of Dr. Bauer for several days.

THEY WILL BE PROSECUTED.

Col. Normile Says Gov. Crittenden Will Scarcely Appoint Him in the Event of Mr. Harris' Death.

In That Emergency Mr. Bliss Will Take the Helm and Prosecute the Gamblers—The Cases Peremptorily Docketed.

RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TESTIMONY.

The State will be ready on the 19th, and as I am about to leave town to-night I wish to understand whether there is a certainty about the cases being set for the 19th. Mr. Harris and myself having the testimony. I think it but justice to Col. Normile to assure him that it will be here and submitted to him in a few days for his review and arrangement. It is at Mr. Harris' house, and since Col. Normile has come into office Mr. Harris has been so unwell as to prevent either of us from conferring with him about the testimony. Neither could we ask for it without awakening in his mind our fears that he would not recover—a thing to be avoided at present."

COL. NORMILE

then rose and made the following remarks, which explain the condition of things very fully.

"I fear that Mr. Harris will not survive this week. I sincerely hope that I may be mistaken, but there is little left me on this painful subject save the dim glimmering of that hope that goes out with the expiring spirit. On the death of Mr. Harris there will occur a vacancy the Governor alone can fill until November next. Without really knowing whom he will appoint I am safe in saying there is no likelihood of his selecting me. Our

PERSONAL RELATIONS

have been unfriendly. There is, therefore, no likelihood of my being here, officially, on the 19th to try these cases, and, therefore, I am glad Mr. Bliss will continue in them. He will thus be a connecting link between the past and the future." The court and Mr. Bliss smiled at the "connecting link," and putting on one of his blandest smiles the Colonel continued: "I trust I shall be acquitted of an intention of using the words connecting link in the sense of the lamented Mr. Darwin. Nothing could be further from my thoughts. The Apollonian form, face and head of my friend Bliss forbid any such libelous insinuation. By Monday Mr. Bliss and myself hope to get the notes of that testimony from Mr. Harris and I could prepare the cases were I to continue in them inside of the two succeeding weeks. I am quite sure, however, that in the event of Mr. Harris' death

I WILL NOT BE HIS SUCCESSOR."

Mr. Bliss said he really hoped and believed Col. Normile was mistaken in his belief that Gov. Crittenden would not continue him in office. "It is important," said he, "that the Governor should do so. The universal wish, the demand, of the public of St. Louis of every party is that we cannot afford to lose at this time the able and brilliant talents of Col. Normile, and I am led to believe that Gov. Crittenden could not ignore the wishes of the public in matters of such great interest here."

The court then ordered the gambling cases to be peremptorily set for June 19. To-morrow Col. Normile and Mr. Bliss will indicate to the clerk the arrangement of the docket after examining the testimony. The arrangement effected to-day obviates the difficulty that would arise in the event of Mr. Harris' death. No matter who will succeed, if Col. Normile is not appointed, the cases will be well cared for by Mr. Bliss.

NOT GUILTY.

John B. Jolly Acquitted of the Charge of Arson.

The jury in the case of John B. Jolly, indicted for arson in the third degree, which has been on trial in the Criminal Court for two days post, this morning, after the evidence was closed, retired, and in a few moments returned with a verdict of not guilty. Jolly was accused of having attempted to burn a saloon on the corner of Seventh and Washington avenue some time since. The circumstances surrounding the case were somewhat suspicious, and consequently Jolly was after a time arrested and held. P. W. Fauntleroy, who defended Jolly, in his opening statement said the case was not one of arson, but of bad management on the part of the Fire Department, and a disinclination on the part of the insurance people to pay the insurance. The jury may have taken this view of the case, for in a few minutes they returned with the verdict of not guilty, and the prisoner was discharged.

It is charged by the officers of the two companies that he got money that he never accounted for.

Frank Burns was held in the sum of $1,000 for burglary in the second degree. He was placed in jail.

The cases against Adam Unrath and Joseph Shuetz for publishing obscene literature will be tried to-day.

A DRAMATIC ARREST.

How Doctor Alleon was Forced to Surrender to a U. S. Marshal.

The Doctor Indicted for Sending Obscene Literature Through the Mails—A Serious Charge.

The United States Marshal, under an indictment found by the Federal grand jury, arrested yesterday afternoon Dr. J. K. Alleon, of 910 North Tenth street. The Government, as it is well known, makes strenuous exertions to preserve the wholesome use of the mails and to prevent abuse of the postal service. A crusade has been in existence for some time to prevent the circulation through the mails of obscene books, scurrilous and indecent literature, etc. Several offenders in this district—quack doctors, male and female, have been brought up and punished in the United States District Court. The statute, section 3893, provides very heavy punishment for such abuse of the mails, ranging from one to ten years' imprisonment with hard labor, and a fine of $100 to $5,000. District Attorney Bliss produced such evidence before the Federal grand jury in the case of Dr. J. K. Alleon that against the Doctor charging him with having "deposited in the mail a publication of an indecent character, to-wit: a pamphlet entitled, Dr. J. K. Alleon's Guide to Long Life, Health, Prosperity and Happiness, for the use of all persons afflicted with diseases and troubles, whether males or females, which publication is so indecent that the same would be offensive to the court here and improper to be placed on the records; wherefore the jurors did not set forth the same in the indictment. The publication was contained in a wrapper, and bore the following address:

AN INDICTMENT WAS FOUND

Josie Dupont, care Lock Drawer A, De Soto, Mo.

Copies of the same publication were likewise addressed as follows:

J. B. Saylor, box 49, East St. Louis.

Hannah H. Hume, Collinsville, Ill., care of box 194.

Caroline Limbur, Post-office box 84, Lebanon, Mo.

A publication in German was likewise circulated as follows:

"Dr. J. K. Alleon's Guide to Long Life, Marriage Prosperity and Contentment, for the use of all patients, whether male or female gender."

MR. M'AFEE,

agent here of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, accompanied Deputy Marshal Wheeler when he went to the Alleon residence to make the arrest. They rang the bell and were admitted by a female, who at once ushered one visitor into a back parlor and the the other into a room further rearwards. The separation of callers seemed to be a part of the system adopted at the doctor's establishment. Deputy Marshal Wheeler was shown into a room with darkened and sombre surroundings imparting an air of profound mystery. He asked to see the doctor and a voice from behind was heard in reply: "What do you want, sir?" These words were uttered in a gruff tone, slow and measured. The Marshal began to feel that he was communing with some one from the spirit-land, but he said to the person concealed behind the curtain: "I want to get a marriage guide." The curtain was then drawn partly aside, disclosing dimly a man with flowing, sandy beard, of middle height, enveloped in a college gown. In the rear was a kind of rostrum or pulpit and the room was darkened. It was the Doctor himself who gravely and slowly said: "The lady will give you the marriage guide." Marshal Wheeler at that moment drew his revolver and with the other hand made a grab through the curtain at the mysterious physician, saying:

"YOU ARE MY PRISONER, SIR!"

But little resistance was made, although there were expressions of surprise and indignation. A search was then made of the premises and several hundred 'health guides' were seized. This kind of literature has been widely circulated among young girls in families and boarding-schools. In one portion of a pamphlet was found publication of a letter from a young girl on the eve of matrimony, who inclosed $5 for advice of the means by which she could overcome the consequences of an early folly and shame. The doctor professed to give attention to this class of cases and announced that he possessed the knowledge by which the purity of a maiden could be restored. Dr. Allen was arraigned this morning before Judge Treat in the United States District Court. He entered a plea of "not guilty," and secured the legal services of W. H. H. Russell for defense. The court bound him over in the sum of $3,000 to appear at the November term of the District Court.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

Joseph Marshall, residing near the foot of Elwood street, caught a white male floater in the river about noon to-day. The body is dressed in jeans pants and vest, without coat, and wearing calfskin boots. The corpse must have been in the water nearly a month and is so far decomposed as to render identification impossible. The Coroner has been notified and will hold an inquest this afternoon.

John Peterson, an employe of the Western Boat Company, was employed putting up a smoke stack at the Vulcan Steel Works about ten o'clock this morning, when he fell from a scaffold to the ground, a distance of fifteen feet, falling on his head. Dr. Outten was summoned, and found Peterson suffering from a concussion of the brain. An ambulance was procured and the injured man taken to the hospital. His injuries are serious, but not necessarily fatal.

THE DIXON ELOPEMENT.

Mrs. Dixon's Attempt to Get Possession of Her Child.

Mr. Barnett H. Dixon, the traveling man, whose wife eloped with young Curtis from 315 Canning avenue, has lately left town, taking his children with him. One cause of this step arose out of a curious circumstance. It will be remembered that when Mrs. Dixon ran away she left three children, and that Roy, the four-year-old boy, was her particular favorite. When she was standing on the door-steps, ready to go away, Roy ran up to her and clung to her dress, and the mother asked plaintively, "Mr. Curtis, can't I take Roy?" "No!" said the young fellow, "that's nonsense. Hurry and come on."

Mr. Dixon has been living until lately at the residence on Channing avenue. He kept his children there in charge of Annie Forman and Sallie, the two colored girls, the former of whom assisted in the elopement and carried Mrs. Dixon's baggage to the livery stable. Not long ago Mrs. Dixon wrote from Texas to Annie, sending her a sum of money and telling her to bring Roy and come to her right away. She further said that she and John were happy and that all she wanted was her boy. The negro servant obeyed the summoxs. She watched her opportunity, packed up Roy's clothing, and was caught on the way to the depot taking the child with her. She did not deny where she was going, but said, as she did in the case of the elopement, that she "was a doin' what missis tole her." A friend of the family tells the story and says that Mr. Dixon grew alarmed and took his children to his brother in Iowa. Nothing further has been heard from the runaways, except a rumor that they are still in Texas, that Curtis' money has run out, and that his partner has begun to find out that she made a great mistake.

It is said that Curtis' father has "condoned" the offense and stands ready to forgive John whenever he wishes to return.

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY HARRIS.

All Hopes of His Recovery Nearly Given Up.

Circuit Attorney Harris was reported this morning as slightly improved, but yet the indications are by no means hopeful and no real change has occurred since yesterday. Mr. Joy spent the night with his partner, caring for and nursing him to the best of his ability, and to-day has nothing of hopefulness to report. Dr. Thompson was telegraphed for from Jefferson City, but failed to arrive this morning, and it is feared he has given up the case. Mr. Harris himself converses frequently about local affairs, in which his interest appears to be centered, though despondent and fearful regarding his own condition. The newspaper representatives are no longer admitted to the house, and the doubt expressed by the friends of Mr. Harris is not at all encouraging. Dr. Johnson is now the sole physician, but he declines to express an opinion.

MY DAUGHTER LOUISE.

In the light of the moon, by the side of the water,
My seat on the sand and her seat on my knees,
We watch the bright billows, do I and my daughter,
My sweet little daughter Louise.
We wonder what city the pathway of glory,
That broadens away to the limitless west,
Leads up to—she minds her of some pretty story
And says: "To the city that mortals love best."
Then I say: "It must lead to the far away city,
The beautiful City of Rest."

In the light of the moon, by the side of the water,
Stand two in the shadow of whispering trees,
And one loves my daughter, my beautiful daughter,
My womanly daughter Louise.
She steps to the boat with a touch of his fingers,
And out on the diamonded pathway they move;
The shallop is lost in the distance, it lingers,
It waits, but I know that its coming will prove
That it went to the walls of the wonderful city,
The magical City of Love.

In the light of the moon, by the side of the water,
I wait for her coming from over the seas;
I wait but to welcome the dust of my daughter,
To weep for my daughter Louise.
The path, as of old, reaching out in its splendor,
Gleams bright, like a way that an angel has trod;
I kiss the cold burden its billows surrender,
Sweet clay to lie under the pitiful sod;
But she rests, at the end of the path, in the city,
Whose "builder and maker is God."

HOMER GREENE.

A GAY CHAPLAIN.

The Lively Career of One of Napoleon's Court Flies.

Paris Correspondence New York Times.

It happened in the Allee des Acacias, on one of those bright spring mornings when all Paris which can sit on a horse rushes to the Bois de Boulogne to bask in the sunshine. "Who is that gentleman?" asked Gen. de Gallifet, as he returned the low bow of a man who trotted by on one of those diminutive cobs that the game of polo has brought into fashion. "I have seen his face somewhere, but can not place him." "I should think you had," answered the lady who accompanied the Marquis. "You used to know him well in former days. He was never presented to me, but he is a personage whom everybody knows after a fashion. It is Monsignore, the ex-Chaplain." "That man!" and wheeling his horse, M. de Gallifet galloped past the Monsignore, pulled up short, and crossed himself, after which he rode back to his companion, and with a laugh, in reply to her question, "Did you ask his benediction?" remarked: "I took it; perhaps it may serve him as a lesson." Poor Monsignore! with his jack boots, his faded complexion, his wrinkled jowls painted like those of the last Duke of Brunswick or of ancient Cora Pearl, and his watery eyes, he is nothing but a ruin, and I can understand how Gen. de Gallifet should have been puzzled to recognize one who, twelve years ago, was the sacred favorite of a palace. He was a "beauty," ladies said, in those times; his bands were of the finest linen, his hands were plump and shapely; he carried high his handsome head, and about him might have been modified the saying of good King Henry: "The master was ruled by his wife, and she by her almoner!" He was a great figure at the Tuileries in 1869, and reigned there supreme, through his august penitent, whom he supplied at the same time with relics, rosaries and poudre de riz, and when the Grand Council of State met he would sit in her Majesty's boudoir—like the monks at the assassination of the last of the Valois—whence a trusty page would bow his instructions to those who, at his pleasure, decided questions of peace or war.

Strange has been the career of this man, who, born a Hungarian Jew, became a Roman prelate and a court confessor, and is now nothing but a hanger-on around the lake. While a youth he was sent to Spain, where his elder brother is the right arm of the first Baron of Israel. A charming place of sojourn for adventurous spirits was the land of Santillane then, and at night on the grand plaza a handsome foreigner of 20 was pretty sure to meet a senora veiled in the classic mantilla who would offer him hospitality. The young Hungarian had scarcely been eight and forty hours in Madrid before he was accosted by the mysterious lady, but report was that he was so inexperienced that august favor was transferred next day to his brother on condition that he should be immediately discharged from his situation at the financial establishment. My hero was, naturally, cut adrift and advised to return to the country of the Zinganes, which he did, third class, being impecunious. However, not caring to share the paternal roof, he stopped to look about him at Bordeaux, and there in the Allee de Tourny, the fashionable promenade, met and made the acquaintance of a wealthy but superannuated Englishwoman, with whom he lived in clover for eighteen months, when his protectress died, and he proceeded to Turin, where, with the little legacy left him, he set up a photographic studio. The lucky star of this persevering man brought him into relations with the French Minister, who wanted a "discreet" portrait of Mme. de Castiglione for the Emperor. He got the job, succeeded admirably and became the fashion. He went everywhere—in the monde ou l'on s'amuse—and gave receptions in the Paphian temple of a certain Adele, which was the notorious resort of several of the most influential Piedmontese statesmen when off duty at the court, and not unfrequently patronized by Victor Emmanuel, who, as everybody knows, delighted in queer company. For some time the trade went on flourishingly, but either because he wanted to enlarge the sphere of his operations or because he had not been discreet enough concerning one of his clients, whose picture was also ordered for his Majesty of France, he sold out the good will and fixtures of the concern and started another at Milan with a fellow-Jew, a brilliant, and since then a celebrated, pianist. For some reason or other this firm failed, the establishment was seized for debt and the two were forced to quit Lombardy, after which they wandered about, taking cheap portraits at the fairs, but always accompanied by a couple of women. Finally they got to Rome, and there, one day, in a fit of despair and after an unprofitable season at Sinigalia, left the women at the Hotel di Minerva, and applied at a convent door for baptism—and something to eat. They were received with open arms, the Osservatore Romano could not say enough in praise of the interesting neophytes, of whom the musical one was accepted at once as organist of the congregation—he is still the principal sacred music performer in the Eternal City, and having remained respectable, need not be named—his companion, who changed his Hungarian patronymic for a more orthodoxically euphonious appellation, took to the study of the fathers and orators of the Church, and discovered his vocation for the apostolate.

Just then, when this brand snatched from the burning was most in view, came to Rome, on a confidential mission to his Holiness, the Abbe C., a protege of the Princess Mathilde. He was presented to the new convert, whose ambition was raised by the tales of court gossip, and of the superstitious practices of the Empress. "I am determined to become the Court Chaplain," he said, and forthwith set himself to work to obtain a release from those monastic vows which were an obstacle to his plans. This affair was managed rapidly, and the banker at Madrid procured him a letter of recommendation from the Duke d'Osuna to the Empress. He was received with more than ordinary courtesy at the Tuileries. As I have said, he was good-looking, his manner was distinguished, his bearing was correct and reserved, his language unctuous and in a very few weeks' time he supplanted the old confessor of the chateau, who was merely an ecclesiastic of exemplary piety, but a trifle austere. From that moment the ex-photographer's fortune seemed made. The ladies all doted on him, the sovereign asked his advice, he was used as an intermediary between the Court and the Curia, and by way of reward for his zealous services in the good cause was appointed by Pope Pius IX. Apostolic Prothonotary. It was altogether lovely and edifying, but the war of 1870 broke out, and brutal gunpowder put to flight the confessor and his flock. Yet did not Monsignore despair; like Vishnu, he entered into another incarnation, and, casting aside his band, and cassock, girded on the sword, covered himself with embroidery, varnished boots, and Geneva crosses, obtained a charger and caracoled about the streets of Paris in a species of clerico-opera comique costume, remindful of Fra Diavolo. Paris surrendered, the Commune began, the Federes declined his services, and he fled to Versailles, where he preserved some of his former prestige, until, on a complaint made against him to the Bishop—he was accused of living with and off of two ladies, a mother and her daughter—he was suspended from his functions and forbidden to say mass. An appeal was made by him to his old protectress, and, she interfering in his behalf, the interdict was raised, and he returned to Paris, promising to sin no more, and hoping in the crowd to escape notice. But he went back to his old practices; again was his disreputable conduct signaled to his ecclesiastical superiors, and again was he suspended, and this time definitely, as the intercession of the exiled lady of Chiselhurst was unheeded at the Vatican. From that moment Monsignore turned over a new leaf; he renounced forever the Church and its pomps, and took to his present boulevard profession, which he exercises to perfection. He is an abonne at the opera and the circus, a habitue of the foyer de danse and the stables of M. Francoise, where he supplies women with bonbons and makes them blush under their paint at his jokes; he is at every "premiere" in the box of some one who happens to be without an official protector, though he is never admitted there when she is accompanied by any gentleman, or else leaves discreetly on the entrance of any visitor; he is a most valuable acquaintance, my dear; he is never in the way, and one can always trust him to take out the dogs for a morning walk. Ex-Monsignore is such a peculiar type of the Parisian species of the "man-about-town" genus that I have ventured to relate his history.

The Lovely Sparrow.

From the Detroit Free Press.

"What other birds does the sparrow agree with?" "The buzzard and the pole-cat. He is too proud to take up with every stranger who comes along. He has driven away our robins and bluebirds and larks and chickadees, and even the hens are looking for another opening." "Would it be wicked to kill one of these sparrows?" "Awfully wicked. The philanthropists would raise such a howl that the killer would have to skip the country. Besides, you can't shoot 'em, they won't be poisoned and no one ever yet trapped one. A man down in Ohio thinks a blow with a barn door might fetch 'em, but it is as yet an untried experiment. That is all for this time. Let us now lay away our books and sit on the steps and listen to the ravishing melody of the sparrow's evening song."

A GUSHER.

An Oil Well that Spurts a Thousand Barrels per Day.

Warren (Pa.) Special to New York Sun.

Although the oil market has somewhat steadied itself from the effects of the staggering blow it received from the news that the wildcat venture on Lot 646, Cherry Grove Township was gushing crude oil at the rate of a thousand barrels per day, the excitement at the scene of the bonanza is at fever heat. Many of the heaviest producers or their agents were on the ground early, and having quietly satisfied themselves have departed, or are making arrangements to try for a strike themselves. The district is overrun with an army of small producers, operators, land brokers and not a few curiosity hunters.

The origin of the now famous well may be briefly told as follows:

Some years ago a Mr. Landerath, of Rouseville, while owner of a dry hole on lot 660, eighty-two miles southwest of the Gusher, obtained leases of 400 acres of land in Cherry Grove. In 1881, Will Falconer, of Warren, bought a few leases, and, as the time of their expiration was near, he interested Fred. Morck, a Warren jeweler, with him in order that a well might be drilled, but the failure of a well at Balltown discouraged them and nothing was done. The Allegheny field was booming and matters looked blue. A short time before their leases ran out Geo. Dimick, founder of the famous Sarah Jane well at Petrolia, Butler county, and who has been interested in so many wildcat failures that he had not money enough to drill a well, came to Mr. Morck and for a half-interest agreed to put down a test hole. The means he obtained from Capt. Grace, of Jamestown, New York, who took three interests in Dimick's half of the original 400 acres. The last of February saw the start on the northeast corner of lot 646, but when the drill reached a depth of 800 feet the leases expired, and Chris. Larsen, a Swede, who owned the land, stopped the work. For $200 they had the time extended, and also secured oil right for 100 acres from Larsen, which land they have bought. Larsen, who made his home in this thick hemlock wilderness, has cleared $15,000 or more since the beginning of the present boom. Dimick figured that oil would be found in the Clarendon sand at a depth of sixteen hundred feet, and when near the depth Morck and Falconer were with him at the derrick. The next few feet discouraged Morck and he left, but soon afterward the drill struck hard pan. The tools were lifted, and the sand line showed bits of hard white pebble, the formation peculiar to this section. Dimick knew that he had won. After further drilling for a short time, the tools were pulled, and the hole, which was filling fast, was plugged. This was about the middle of March. All oil men recall the excitement when in April it was reported that the well had broken loose and covered the derrick with oil. The truth of the matter was that the Union Oil Company, having bought an interest, had caused the plug to be drawn, when the well made a flow, following which it made one hundred and fifteen barrels for several days. It was then plugged, and the Union Oil Company began its pipe line from North Clarendon to the wells. This was finished on Thursday last, and, anticipating it, the plug was drawn and the tools run on Wednesday, when the well began to flow, increasing until it reached its present rate, which has been maintained with little deviation since.

Morck and Falconer have cleared $33,250 and their royalties. The flows now average six minutes each through two-inch pipes, with intervals of fourteen to eighteen minutes between flows, and trustworthy estimates agree that to-day the well does even a shade better than one thousand barrels. The immediate territory is fully occupied, and rigs are going up with the utmost speed, while the adjacent territory is selling at prices it would be folly to attempt to quote in this dispatch. The township lots contain sixteen acres, and the average price is perhaps fairly given at $250 per acre and an eighth royalty.

Surrounding the great Gusher work is active. J. A. Cadwallader & Co. have two wells drilling, one north and one west, each about hundred feet from the spouter, and have two rigs completed. The owners of 646 have four rigs done—two east, one south, and another northwest—distance apart four hundred and fifty feet. The rig south is ready to drill. Cadwallader's wells are about twelve hundred feet down to-night, and should be ready to pan out by Tuesday. Visitors to the front, as 646 is called, go over a plank road down nearly to the well, and to be completed to Garfield, the new oil town of magic growth on the summit of the divide southwest of the well, half a mile distant, and 563 feet above the level of North Clarendon. Here a hemlock city, boasting already of a grocery, palace hotel, oil well, supply depot, and other shanties, is located. Western Union wires are soon to be stretched from Warren to the city, which will also be the temporary terminus of the Warren and Farnsworth Valley Narrow-gauge Railroad, now building from North Clarendon, and which will eventually connect with the narrow-gauge roads to be built in Forest county. The distance to Garfield as surveyed is nine and one-third miles, and rails will be down to that point not later than July 29. Among the stockholders of this enterprise are Lieut.-Gov. C. W. Stone, the Hon. L. D. Wetmore, the Hon. T. Struthers, F. H. Rockwell, Esq, and prominent bank officials of Warren; J. A. Cadwallader, J. J. Vandergrift, of the United Pipe Lines, and others. The road will prove a bonanza, regardless of the success or failure of the eldorado. The United Pipe Line Company is laying a two inch pipe to the new tract to carry the crude oil to loading stations at Clarendon. From an impartial standpoint, experts regard the new find and the prospects of others as the most gigantic lottery ever known in the oil region. Should the several wells down come in, big operators may look for quotations in the forties.

THE general agent for the sale of the Star Chewing Tobacco for the Pacific Coast, Mr. W. H. I tried the remedy that is setting every one wild now-a-days—St. Jacobs Oil—just two applications of which entirely cured me."

How the Suckers Bite.

Jos. Medill, Esq., in the Chicago Tribune.

"Myrtle, dear?"

"Yes, George, what is it?" replied the girl, glancing shyly upward.

The radiant glory of a summer moon shone down upon the earth this June night, bathing in all its mellow splendor the leafy branches of the sturdy old oaks that had for centuries shaded the entrance to Castle McMurtry and laughed defiance to the fierce gales that every winter came howling down in all their cruel force and fury from the moorlands lying to the westward of the castle. On the edge of the broad demesne that stretched away to the south stood a large brindle cow, and as the moonlight flecked with silvery lustre her starboard ribs she seemed to Myrtle a perfect picture of sweet content and almost holy calm.

"Is it not a beautiful night, dearest?" murmured the girl. "See how the moonbeams flutter down through the trees, making strange lights and shadows that flit among the shrubs and flowers in such a weird, ghost-like fashion. The dell is indeed clothed in loveliness to-night, sweetheart."

"Yes," said George W. Simpson, "this is the boss dell"—and then, looking down into the pure, innocent face that was lifted to his, he took in his own broad, third-base palm the little hand that erstwhile held up Myrtle's polonaise. As they stood there silently in the bosky glade George passed his arm silently but firmly around Myrtle's waist.

The noble girl did not shy.

"Do you love me, sweetheart?" he asked in accents that were tremulous with tremulousness."

Myrtle's head was drooping now, and the rosy blushes of Calumet avenue innocence were chasing each other across her peachy cheeks.

George drew her more closely to him. If a mosquito had tried to pass between them then it would have been bad for the mosquito.

"Can you doubt me, darling?" he whispered. "You surely must know that I love you with a wild, passionate, whoa-Emma love that can never die. Do you not love me a little in return?"

For an instant the girl did not speak. George heard the whisking of the brindle cow's tail break in rudely upon the solemn stillness of the night, and ever and anon came the dull thud of the bullfrog as he jumped into a neighboring pond. Presently Myrtle placed her arms about his neck, and with a wistful, baby's-got-the-cramp look in her sweet face, she said to him: "I love you, George, with a deathless devotion that will eventually keep you broke." And with these fateful words she adjusted her rumpled bang and fearlessly led the way to an ice-cream lair.

A Strange Story of Death.

From the Boston Herald.

There is a very strange story reported from East Boston. On Friday, the 12th instant, there died at the residence of Amos R. Lovejoy, 157 Webster street, a young lady named Hattie G. Craig, lacking a few days only of being 24 years of age. Her death was preceded by a sickness of nearly a year, and the disease of which she died was clearly of a consumptive nature. Many of the circumstances following the death and preceding the burial of the young lady are of a peculiarly interesting if not of a distressing nature. On the morning of the 12th the long-suffering patient seemed to be rapidly nearing the end, and at 11 o'clock she appeared to have breathed her last. The eyes of the young lady were tenderly closed by her sorrowing grandmother and the body was left alone with the weeping father. He remained about half an hour in the chamber of death and then took his leave with reluctance. Just as he had turned his back upon the beloved form he was startled by a movement of the body and an exclamation simultaneously of "Papa, papa, please don't leave me." When he turned around he saw, with delight and astonishment, that his daughter was not a corpse, but an actual, living and conscious being, endowed with as much intellect and strength as at any time during the last part of her sickness. Of course there were now great joy and consternation throughout the household. When she had become somewhat calm Miss Craig, with a smile and countenance angelic beyond description, said:

"Oh, papa, dear, do you know where I have been?"

"No, Hattie; tell me where you have been; let me know all about it," answered the overjoyed father.

"Oh, papa, I have seen heaven, and I am to have my health restored to me on certain conditions," she answered in great glee.

"What are these conditions, and are you willing to submit to them?" asked the father.

"Yes, papa; certainly I am."

"But what are they, dear?" still queried the father.

"I can not reveal them to you now, papa. But, oh, I saw such beautiful things in heaven."

"Tell me, won't you, all about who and what you saw? Come now, that's a good girl."

"Oh, I saw them all; I saw them all, papa, and I'm going to heaven again, and when I go don't let them put me into the ground until you are sure I am dead."

During the rest of the day, up to six o'clock in the evening, the poor girl was alternately in a conscious and swooning condition. At six o'clock she seemed to have died. There was no change in the body for three days and several physicians counseled that the body be kept from the tomb. On the fourth day, however, there were unmistakable signs of death and the interment took place.

Fibbed About Her Age.

From a New York Letter.

A breach of promise suit, with damages laid at $10,000, has been brought by Sarah Treasdorf, a Jewess, and niece of Nathan Bernstein, of No. 190 South Ninth street, against Abraham Schwartz, of Court street, Newark. After many visits, the plaintiff alleges, the defendant asked her to marry him on April 15 last, and they then became formally engaged. On May 6 Schwartz ceased his visits, and on the following day returned her photograph. The defendant denies that he was ever engaged to the fair plaintiff, and says that she was 30 years old when she represented herself as 21, and that, furthermore, his physician forbade his marriage.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors :—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

IT is not entirely safe, it seems, to kill a policeman in St. Louis. Professional hoodlums will please take notice.

BEFORE the poor rag-pickers of St. Louis are required to pay a license it would be a good move to increase the tax on drinking-saloons.

LIEUT. DANENHAUER, of the Jeannette expedition, is receiving so many honors that thousands of adventurous young gentlemen will probably be anxious to go into the Arctic survivor business.

THE retail ice-dealers of St. Louis are keeping up the price of ice to $1 a hundred, when it can be purchased in any quantity from the barges lying at our wharf for twenty cents a hundred. What does it mean?

THEY have a new political organization up in Michigan called the American Party. It opposes secret societies, favors prohibition and demands the formal recognition of God. Somebody out of employment ought to introduce a sprout from this party in Missouri.

THE little Chicago lawyer who is seeking notoriety is still developing great legal schemes to save GUITEAU'S neck from the gallows, but despite all his tricks the assassin will be likely to pay his debt to the American people twenty-eight days from date.

SHEA, the murderer of Officer DORAN, was this morning found guilty of murder in the first degree. In view of the peculiar instructions of the Court this result is another triumph for Col. NORMILE, who, as Circuit Attorney pro tem., conducted the prosecution with unusual vigor and skill.

THE House of Delegates last night concurred in the Council amendments to the ordinance providing for the removal of the ancient Lucas Market sheds. This is a most encouraging sign of progress. Now let Twelfth street be cut through to Cass avenue, and we will have a thoroughfare that will be a credit to the city.

COL. TOM. OCHILTREE, who has been hanging around the lobbies in Washington and telling stories at dinner parties given to influence jobbing Congressmen, has posted himself as an Independent Republican candidate for the House in the Galveston, Texas, district and is confident of election. It looks as though the lower end of Texas had gone to seed.

WE observe that Dr. CRITTENDEN, LL. D.' is mentioned in the list of orators who are engaged for the CRISP Picnic, which is to be held at Excelsior Springs, Clay county, for four days, beginning on the 14th inst. The Doctor, we presume, is to be thrown in on the last day for the "Temperance Reunion," which takes place after the liquids have all been consumed.

GEN. NOBLE, of this city, delivered a soothing oration on Decoration Day at Keokuk, Iowa, in the course of which he took occasion to stir up the sectional animosities of the country by hammering Col. BROADHED, Gen. FROST and Dr. LAWS, his misguided fellow-citizens, on account of views recently expressed by them. Our State is managing to attract attention on the outside, it seems.

MISSOURI is rising in the scale of civilization—by comparison. A prisoner in the Onandaga prison, at Syracuse, New York, was whipped almost to death the other day by a brutal keeper. Mr. BRADBURY, the head driver of the Missouri Penitentiary, should send and get the particulars. Perhaps these "Yankee men" down there have invented some new styles in bullwhacking.

A WASHINGTON special says: "Gen. Wm. W. BELKNAP returned from the West this morning. The General thought Col. BROADHEAD'S refusal to address the Army of the Tennessee a very strange procedure." And a great many people thought that the appearance of Gen. BELKNAP at the meeting of the Army of the Tennessee Association was, not only a strange, but a very cheeky and impudent procedure. There were people with retentive minds who recalled the story of the bartered post-traderships.

THERE is no doubt whatever that if the indicted gamblers of St. Louis will plead guilty and take light sentences to the Penitentiary, Dr. CRITTENDEN, LL. D., will pardon them on promises of permanent reformation. Dr. CRITTENDEN is a benignant man who believes all the while in appealing to man's better nature when there is the slightest hope of reforming him. It must be said, by way of proper explanation, that the Doctor was misled into the belief that JESSE JAMES was an incorrigible. Therefore he had him shot.

THE Emperor of Brazil is correcting the proof-sheets of his volume, "Mes Impressions de Voyage." His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh played a violin obligato to GOUNOD'S "Ave Maria," as sung by MARIE ROZE at Albert Hall on May 20th. The Princess LOUISE is painting a large canvas, "Hagar in the Wilderness," for the next Academy. The King of Denmark, having weeded impertinent critics out of his kingdom by a ruthless exiling of the scoffers, is composing a new play. King LUDWIG, of Bavaria, is leading his new orchestra. The King of Greece has discovered a new kind of onion which he is fostering carefully. Thus do the busy crowned heads of the Old and New Worlds improve each shining hour. Composing bad books and playing bad music is about as harmless an occupation as one could devise for their Most Serene Highnesses, and it is to be hoped that they will honestly try to get their books and pictures and plays and onions as bad as royal amateurism can make them. It is a much more harmless pursuit than meddling with the Government of the peoples.

DEACON SMITH, of the Cincinnati Gazette, having dropped a black frost on the Republican party of his State through his advocacy of the POND law, which inflicted a heavy tax on drinking-saloons, is being subjected to a good deal of ridicule by his contemporaries, now that his law has been declared a nullity. The Commercial touches him up in this style:

> The Deacon thought he had the liquor traffic disposed of, and was ready to summon the Black Maria to carry off the cucumber eaters and to enact that watermelon be sprinkled with Jamaica ginger. Alas! that true goodness should meet so many rebuffs in standing sentry duty over the bowels of the scoffer.

THERE is one State in the Union now which is completely controlled and owned by gamblers—the State of Louisiana. Mr. CHARLES T. HOWARD, the owner of the Louisiana Lottery, has recently shown his power in the Legislature by killing off certain bills which were designed to create opposition to his gigantic monopoly, and the performance has created quite a disturbance in New Orleans. HOWARD had his lottery incorporated in the State Constitution in 1879, and he is rich enough now to own Judges, courts, newspapers and Legislatures, and it seems almost impossible to break up his monopoly. He pays the city of New Orleans $40,000 per annum, in the shape of a douceur to a Charity Hospital, and after he has controlled politics and paid out blackmail to all persons powerful enough to disturb him, he still has a profit of about $75,000. Generals BEAUREGARD and EARLY are employed at a good round salary to superintend Mr. HOWARD'S lottery and give tone and character to it. Louisiana was a sad and sorrowful State in the days of the carpet-baggers and the plantation negro statesmen, but her position to-day is really more humiliating. She is simply owned by a rich gambler, and while this is so there can be no development, no advancement, no building up of industries. The man who will deliver the State from the dominion of this lottery-wheel Emperor will be a benefactor as well as a patriot.

THOSE who have been predicting that a general strike in the iron shops of the country would take place on the 1st of June have been vindicated by the result. To-day the iron-working industry of the country is paralyzed; the great shops are closed in every city and thousands of men have been thrown out of employment. The strike is the result of the action of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, who control nearly all the mills of the country, and who have declined to advance the wages of the iron-puddlers, the finishers and the helpers. The great body of the workers in iron have not asked for an advance, but in each case where the men have struck their action stops the whole mill and throws every workman in it out of employment. For instance, in the Laclede Rolling Mills in St. Louis ninety men struck and five hundred men had to quit work on account of the strike, and the same proportion holds good elsewhere. No violence is reported from any point where this strike has been made. The iron-workers in Chicago had no connection with the riot there last night; it was a 'longshoremen's affair altogether. Intelligence has been received from some twenty cities, enough to show that the strike is general. How long it will last or how it will result no one can say. The mill-owners have been expecting the trouble long enough to be in a thorough state of preparation. All of them have great stocks of manufactured iron ahead, and if the difficulties are arranged in a short time the effect on the market will not be of a character to excite apprehension.

THE Japanese Indemnity bill has passed the House, and is now before the Senate for action. It will be remembered that the United States Government, in 1864, joined with England, France and the Netherlands in extorting $3,000,000 from the Japanese as an indemnity for the expenses of the expedition which chastised a small, rebellious Japanese Prince in the Straits of Shimonoseki. This barbarous Prince declined to be bound by the acts of the Mikado in opening the ports of Japan, blockaded his straits and opened fire on the United States vessels Wyoming and Pembroke. The Wyoming knocked the Prince's forts into kindling wood, and the allied powers sent an expedition which reduced the rebel at once. When a divy was made of the $3,000,000 the United States got $785,000 (the official report of the cost of the expedition was $11,000), and it is this sum, with interest, now amounting to $2,060,738, which it is now proposed to return to Japan. The other partners in the original extortion have each grown ashamed of the act and returned the plunder. Six Congresses have declined to pay back this money, and the only hope that restitution will be made this time lies in the fact that, coupled with the proposition to pay back the money to Japan, is the proposition to first divide $250,000 of it among the officers and crew of the Wyoming for their gallant and meritorious conduct in the straits of Shimonoseki. The lobby is looking for a slice of this $250,000, and that is the one explanation of the unexpected honesty and desire for restitution which has seized the promoters of the bill. The money ought to be restored to Japan and the officers and crew of the Wyoming should be rebuked for their alliance with the lobby to plunder the Treasury.

SOMEBODY proposed that Dr. LAMSON'S sanity be tested while he was awaiting execution in England by handing him a red hot poker, the theory being that if he dropped it he was insane, and if he did not he was able to distinguish between right and wrong. Of course this is the merest bosh, but the English papers insist upon discussing the question seriously, and one can not look through any file of exchanges without coming upon a choice bit of British folly upon this score. If the experimenters would take their hot poker into an insane asylum they would find that the institution would be full of people who would not grasp the warm end of it. A man may be a lunatic, a dangerous lunatic, and still thoroughly able to distinguish things that will hurt him from things that will not hurt him. It requires a very low grade of reason to avoid pain. No one will urge that a cat or a dog or a monkey has reason enough to commit a crime, and yet neither cat, dog or monkey would willingly take hold of the hot poker. We hear in murder trials, for which the defense is insanity a great deal of loose talk about the ability of the accused to distinguish between right and wrong. In the GUITEAU case, for instance, insanity experts from different parts of the country had a great deal to say on this particular phase of the case. And yet much more than half the insane confined in the asylums of this country can distinguish between right and wrong as well as people outside the bedlams. If this were not the case, what sense would there be in having recognized punishments for the lunatics who break the rules of the asylum in which they are living. If they cannot distinguish between right and wrong it is most inhuman to punish them for doing wrong. And yet it is the experience of keepers that punishment has its effect upon the patients, making them behave. The hot poker test for insanity is a good deal like the hot plowshare test for a crime. If science can do no better than that, it were better that it did nothing at all.

THE House at Washington will take up the Sessinghaus-Frost contested case to-day. It will of course decide that Mr. Sessinghaus is entitled to the seat.—[Globe-Democrat.

Yes, it is a hundred to one that any Democrat whose seat is contested in the present House will be set ashore. The Republicans, like the colored gentleman who pursued the woodchuck, are in need of meat.

The POST-DISPATCH exhibits in its business a spirit of enterprise which is possessed by no other paper in the West. Having scarcely six months ago procured the most perfect printing press which exists anywhere, and with which it can issue 15,000 papers per hour, it has recently procured a second similar press, so that now it gains one hour in time, and yet with the aid of these two wonderful machines it can supply the carriers and newsboys in the shortest possible time.

Grant and His Presents.

A Policeman Speaks Up.

ST. LOUIS, June 1.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please allow me a small space in your paper for the purpose of replying to "Lawyer's" communication in yesterday's P.-D. regarding the ring which exists among policemen for the purpose of collecting witness fees, which, according to the opinion of this sparrow-brained shyster, they are not entitled to. Police officers do not get or claim fees in any case where the city is liable for cost, but the State of Missouri allows all persons attending court in felony cases witness fees, and as a matter of course police officers included. This creature calling himself "Lawyer" I venture to say, never paid a dollar taxes in his life. It often occurs that two or three officers get into cases and are indispensable as witnesses in many cases of the highest degrees of felony, which require coroborative testimony to convict base criminals. Police officers, especially these on night duty, having cases in the Criminal Court, are often detained several hours of their own time attending to court business. This occurs very often with down-town officers, and men losing sleep and rest are very well entitled to what the law allows them, though they sometimes have to wait two years and then get beaten out of a part of their just dues. A lawyer who is a gentleman would not begrudge the poor, abused peeler the few paltry dollars he gets in this way.

CENTRAL DISTRICT POLICEMAN.

Spirit Photographing.

ST. LOUIS, May 31.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Having read your reporter's description of an interview with a so-called spirit photographer, in which he (the reporter) seems to have been completely satisfied of the genuineness of the test, permit me to ask, for the benefit of a too-much gulled public, why he did not give a more thorough investigation than the one he described. He allows the medium, it seems, an uninterrupted solitude in the dark room after the sitting is made, while he converses scientifically with the operator (a very young one, by the by, who would be greatly puzzled, as far as his chemistry goes, to tell how many grains there were to a scruple). He then is shown three or four outlines of faces on his negative, which a credulous and anxious mind would easily take for features of departed friends, and then gives a glowing account of a simple trick that any photographer could accomplish if left by himself in the dark room. If this lady has the remarkable power, which I most emphatically deny, why not take any well-known and reputable photographer of the city and investigate the wonderful feat, which seems to have so astonished your reporter, before giving it such publicity.

Respectfully yours, etc.,
CHAS. H. HAMMERSLEY.

Why the Weather is Peculiar.

ST. LOUIS, MO., June 1.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Many theories have been put forth to account for the unusual weather during April and May. I think the abnormal condition may be ascribed to the effects of enormous mountains and fields of ice floating in the Atlantic, which have drifted from the northwest coast of Greenland, through Baffin's Bay and Davis' Strait, extending half way across the Atlantic. Mount Hekla has been belching fire and lava for some time, and the subterranean fires of the earth extending along the northwest coast of Greenland, and perhaps to the North Pole, loosened the icebergs, causing them to flow out into the Atlantic on the upper current setting through Baffin's Bay and Davis' Strait. The enormous mountains and fields of ice, more extensive than ever seen before, reported floating in the Atlantic, have undoubtedly affected the atmosphere of the eastern and northwestern portion of the American continent in the manner we have experienced. How long the condition may continue, no one can tell. It may cease under the effect of a hot sun in June, and it may continue until July.

THE PRIEST'S EVIDENCE.

The Appeal Brief Taken by Father Gleeson to Rome.

St. Louis Depositions Which the Cardinal Prince Simeoni Will Use.

Yesterday the POST-DISPATCH gave the details of Father Gleeson's departure to Rome to appeal from the decision of Archbishop Kenrick, of St. Louis, suspending him from exercising the priestly functions on account of the alleged irregularities attending the birth of a child to a servant in his house, Miss Mary Proctor. But little remains to be added to the story, except that the name of Father Gleeson's accuser is not McBride, but Michael Donnelly. A copy of the Latin appeal which Father Gleeson takes to Rome, which was prepared by Rev. D. S. Phelan, is in the city, and although the evidence against the reverend gentleman is said to be very strong, this is the only official account of the testimony in the case obtainable. This document is a printed pamphlet of some fifty pages, and is addressed: "To the Most Reverend and Most Eminent Prince John Cardinal Simeoni", who is president of the Propaganda, to which all missionary cases are referred. Father Gleeson relates his services to the church, among which was the building of churches in the cities of LaGrange, Canton, Williamstown, and other places, as well as large churches in Louisiana, Mo., and in St. Louis. On the 8th of December he was summoned before the judices causarum, on December 15th, sitting at St. John's Library Hall, on Sixteenth, near Chestnut. He was not permitted to question the witnesses against him, and on January 27th he received from the Archbishop letters suspending him from the priestly functions. He submits the demand which he made upon the Archbishop for a review of his case, in which he was prepared to produce new witnesses whom he had secured by advertisement in the Irish World, and by proclamation from the pulpits of Denver, Col. To this demand the Archbishop has not yet replied. Following this statement come the depositions, which are literal translations of the English documents prepared by the notaries. It will surprise Leo XIII. probably to discover that Maria Ryan, born Proctor, was sworn "coram me, Morrison Renshaw, infrascripto Notario publico, cujus litteræ codicilii datæ sunt usque ad diem quintum Julie, 1885, duraturæ." Mary Ryan is the mother of the boy in the case, and she testifies that "T. Carolus Kelly" was its father. It was born June 26, 1874, and she swears positively that Father Gleeson was a pure man as far as she knew. Kelly gave $50 towards supporting the child at the time. The child was baptized Gleeson and not Kelly, as she swears, by the insane whim of a woman named McCrone, with whom the child was living, which woman subsequently died of mania a potu in St. Vincent's Insane Asylum. The child was always called Kelly, and not Gleeson. John Proctor, the father of Mary Ryan, to whom the boy was born, swears that Kelly and not Gleeson was the father of the baby. Catherine Patterson, the sister of Mary Ryan, swears to the same facts. Susan Waite testified to the facts of the christening whereby the child was named Gleeson and not Kelly. Patrick McCrone also deposes to the explanation of this fact. Laurence Ryan, the present husband of the mother of the illegitimate boy, swears that he knew his wife had been a mother before he married her and that T. C. Kelly was the father of the child. Henry Perkinson and James F. Roach, who, by the way, described himself as "quatuor annos praetoris (sheriff) deputatus in urbe Sto. Ludovico sub Praetore Finn," testify to Donnelly's character and his desire to trade on his information and to Father Gleeson's good character. T. Carolus Kelly deposes to all the facts of the birth of the child, and admits his paternity of it. Mr. A. J. P. Garesche submits a long deposition in French, in which he gives the result of his investigations made in the case, rather as a Judge of Instruction than as an advocate. He is satisfied of Father Gleeson's innocence. So also is Mr. Louis Fusz, who writes to Rome as President of the St. Vincent de Paul Association, Father Walsh and Father Phelan. It is not improbable that a decision will be reached by the Propaganda before the end of the summer.

VALUABLE IMPROVEMENTS.

Important New Buildings Now in Course of Erection.

Although there is some complaint of a general dullness in business there seems to be no lack of contemplated improvements in the erection of buildings. A POST-DISPATCH reporter gathered the following information this morning:

James Stewart, architect, is now engaged in preparing plans for the remodelling of the building of the Y. M. C. A. Among the improvements are a new story, which will be used, when completed, as a gymnasium, with all the latest contrivances for developing muscular christianity. The lower floor is to contain the general offices, the library and reading-rooms. The second floor will be an auditorium. All the columns which are now in the room are to be removed and a new gallery added, and everything will be done with a view to making this a model hall. Particular attention will be paid to ventilation and light, and the building promises to compare favorably with any in the country. The cost of the improvements will be $15,000.

Geo. I. Barnett & Sons, have under their care the demolition of the old St. Luke's Hospital building, on Tenth and St. Charles streets, and the erection of a new structure in its stead for the French Silvering Company, who propose to manufacture plate-glass mirrors and other fine glassware on a very extensive scale. They will also erect at the entrance to Calvary Cemetery two elegant stone lodges in English-Gothic style, which they propose to make models of beauty. Thomas J. Furlong will superintend the erection of a row of stone front dwellin-houses for D. R. Garrison, on Page avenue, near Grand avenue, at a cost of $25,000, which will be a great improvement to the locality. He will also look after the building of a number of smaller residences in the vicinity of Fifteenth and Papin street, for Dr. O'Reilly.

C. K. Ramsey has in hand the magnificent edifice on the south side of Christy avenue, which will have a frontage on three streets and be six stories high. Capt. J. A. Scudder is the owner, and the building will be occupied by Krafft, Holmes & Co. It is to be of brick, with stone trimmings. This will inaugurate a new order of things, and instil new life into this vicinity. James McGrath has planned and will oversee the erection of the new car stables of the Jefferson avenue Railroad Company on the corner of La Salle street and Jefferson avenue. The buildings will consist of a car house, the dimensions of which will be 145x95. The stables will accommodate 150 horses, and will be about the same size as the car house. The buildings will be entirely of brick, and new features have been introduced into the arrangement of the stalls and in the manner of supplying feed to the horses which are noteworthy. They are to be finished by Fair week. He also is engaged in plans for an addition to the institution of the Little Sisters of the Poor, at a cost of $20,000. This will enable them to take care of 450 people. The growth of this institution is one of the marvels of the city. In the space of ten years they have accumulated property to the value of $50,000 and now furnish a home for 350 destitute and helpless old people. Their asylum is located on the corner of Sixteenth and Hebert streets. In addition to the above Mr. McGrath has the Christian Brothers' College, which, when completed, will cost nearly $1,000,000. There were in addition to these a number of minor buildings which are not worthy of particular notice.

PARK LOUNGERS.

Men and Women Who Sleep in the Public Parks All Night.

Females Who Ramble in Groups at Night for Mutual Protection.

Among the prisoners arraigned before Judge Jecko in the First District Police Court for trial to-day was Mary Irwin, charged with being a vagrant without any visible means of support or settled place of abode. When the clerk read "you are herein charged that being a female over the age of 14 years you were found loitering and rambling abroad and wandering in the streets and lodging in groceries, tippling houses, beer houses, bawdy houses, houses of bad repute, sheds, stables, market houses, lumber yards and in the open air." Mary took the prisoner's chair without the awkwardness and uncertainty which characterises the movements of a defendant arraigned for the first time. Officer Byrne took the stand and testified: "Last night we raided the loungers in the Missouri Park and arrested Mary Irwin, Mary Granahan and William Burns. These women frequent Missouri Park, at Thirteenth and St. Charles, in crowds, entering the park about 1 o'clock in the afternoon and remaining there until 2 or 3 a. m., when they leave in groups, making regular rounds. I have seen Mary Irwin and Mary Granahan at all hours for the last three months. They do not sleep in the park, but talk all night long, leaving in bands at the dawn for mutual protection." The park-keeper took the stand and swore that he had seen the women assemble in gangs in the park. They never slept there as far as he knew. These are chronic cases who have been up here time and again, but the city fails to make a case under the ordinance. The cases were dismissed.

William Burns was the next defendant arraigned. He had been arrested in the park yesterday. The officer's testimony was that the old man was in the habit of frequenting the park, remaining there from 9 a. m. until 11 p. m., idly watching pedestrians.

"Do you mean to say I never work?" asked the old man, in a sepulchral tone.

"As far as I know, you do not."

"If your Honor please, I work at odd jobs, throwing in coal and doing light work. I am over 60 years old, and can't work steadily. I go to the park for fresh air. I live at lodging-houses around the town, sometimes paying for my bed, and sometimes working for what I eat and a place to sleep. I don't deny going to the park frequently, but I don't harm any one."

"Can you prove who you are?"

"No, I can't prove who I have worked for, because I only threw in coal for fifteen or twenty cents, and they don't know me or I don't know them." When the old man concluded his statement he leaned eagerly forward to hear the judgment on the case, which Judge Jecko announced as dismissed. The old man jumped from the chair and hurried out of the court-room. A long string of female tramps were arraigned, but a case could not be made under the provision of the ordinances.

COLLINS AND HIS CANINE.

A New Decision in the Court of Three C's.

Thomas Collins had a dog. Although this dog was a very diminutive specimen of the "rat-and-tan" species, Thomas thought a good deal of it, likewise his family, so when when about a week ago the dog disappeared there was much grief at the Collins mansion house on Gratiot avenue. The whereabouts of the dog were earnestly sought, and finally it was seen by a member of the family sticking its damp nose out of a front window of a house on Spring street, occupied by a Mrs. Andrews and her husband. The owner immediately claimed it, and Mrs. Andrews wouldn't give it up, saying that it had come to her house, and she would hold it for a reward. This excited the ire of Collins, who, after one or two endeavors to get the animal, had a warrant sworn out for Mrs. Andrews, charging her with stealing the dog. To-day the case was tried in the Court of Criminal Correction. Much feeling was displayed in the trial of the case, and it came out that the dog had been found by the Collins in Mrs. Andrews' house, and that she would not give it up. Mrs. Andrews testified that the dog had come to her house and that she had kept it. She said her husband came home and when he found who it belonged to threw it out of the house. Thomas Collins said he had been offered $200 for it. The defendant got four months in jail as a sentence. Although this dog has not been found it is evident that dogs as portable property have risen in value in the market.

TAX SALE GRIEVANCES.

James D Lucas Complains of the Law's Operation—Heavy Costs.

James D. Lucas brought suit to-day against Jacob B. and Mina Wall, seeking to set aside a sale under a tax judgment and likewise to set aside the judgment. Litigation of this character is growing rapidly, and it may be well to call some attention to the facts prompting it. In this instance Collector Hudson obtained a judgment against Mr. Lucas for $6 25, the aggregate of taxes on five lots. The costs amounted to $24 05. Mrs. Mina Wall claims to hold the title by virtue of the Sheriff's sale in satisfaction of the judgment. Mr. Lucas says that Jacob B. Wall, husband of the claimant, paid for the property. Mr. Lucas wants the decree set aside, the judgment vacated, and he asks to be allowed to pay the taxes, costs, etc., for the following reasons: He had no personal service of the summons upon him; the return of the officer that he "could not be found" was not legal; there was no due notice of publication. Furthermore Mr. Lucas submits that the costs assessed in the judgment were excessive, and not authorized by law, and the Sheriff's fees on advertising the sale were excessive and unauthorized. Mr. Lucas had no knowledge of the suit or the judgment until after the sale. Property-owners are continually complaining of the hardship wrought upon them through the workings of the back-tax law, and of the immense costs authorized by the law in such cases. In this case the costs quadrupled the amount of the judgment.

THE KENNETT CASE.

Petition in the Divorce Case of the Chief of Police.

On account of the mystery surrounding the Kennett divorce case, heard before Circuit Court No. 1 on Monday afternoon, many erroneous impressions have arisen touching the causes alleged in Mrs. Kennett's behalf for seeking a divorce. The papers in the cases have been in the hands of the attorneys until yesterday, when the court called for them. Upon application to the Clerk they were handed out. The decree has not yet been granted by the court and the case was simply submitted. The final disposition of it will not be made known until Monday. The petition is set forth hereunder verbatim:

Sarah B. against Ferdinand B. Kennett. Plaintiff says that on the 17th day of February, 1869, she was duly married to Ferdinand B. Kennett and has since that date continually resided in the State of Missouri; that on the 21st day of October, 1880, said defendant without reasonable cause left plaintiff, and on said date refused to live with her; that defendant has absented himself without reasonable cause for the space of one year; that since said 21st day of October, 1880, defendant absented himself without reasonable cause from plaintiff, and has repeatedly refused, when requested by plaintiff, and still refuses to live with plaintiff; that during the time plaintiff cohabited with defendant as his wife she had six children, to-wit: Julia Kennett, aged about 12; Chadbourne, aged about 7; Donald M., who died in May, 1880, aged about 8; Agnes L., who died in October, 1880, aged 4; Sallie M., aged about 3; Richard, aged about 1 year; that all said children, except the last named, were born while plaintiff and defendant were cohabiting as husband and wife; and that plaintiff is a resident of the city of St. Louis.

Plaintiff says that in all things she has faithfully demeaned herself as the wife of defendant, and performed all her duties as such wife. That defendant has without just cause or provocation abandoned her and refuses to live with her, although often requested so to do. That said defendant is a resident of the city of St. Louis in said State and is in receipt of an income from annual salary of $3 500.

Plaintiff prays that the marriage between her and said defendant may be dissolved and an absolute decree be awarded to plaintiff; that she be awarded the custody of her children; that the sum of $100 per month be allowed her as alimony, and that she have such other and further relief as to this court shall seem just.

DONOVAN & CONROY,
For plaintiff.

Sarah B. Kennett, plaintiff in the above cause, being duly sworn, says that the facts stated in the foregoing petition are true according to her best knowledge and belief; that the complaint is not made out of levity or by collusion, fear or restraint between plaintiff and defendant for the mere purpose of being separated from each other, but in sincerity and truth for the causes mentioned in the petition. SARAH B. KENNETT.

Appearance of defendant and waiver of writ and service.

And now comes Ferdinand B. Kennett, defendant, and enters his voluntary appearance in this cause to the April term and waives issue and service of summons and copy of petition, and consents that this cause be tried at the April term of the court.

FERD. B. KENNETT.

The House bill on charter amendments was reported in Council last night with amendments. The matter was laid over. On reconstruction the amendment provides for payment by the city of roadway preparation, reconstruction of intersections, the property-owners bearing the cost of the superstructure and crosswalks. The cost of reconstruction for the remaining central portion of the city not yet provided for will be $1,400,000 for the district between the Levee and Twelfth street, Poplar street and Franklin avenue. Outside of that district it will cost $5,500,000 to reconstruct. The charter amendment provides for a special tax bill guarantee.

A Day on the River.

The faculty and students of the College of the Christian Brothers picnicked yesterday at Harrisonville, thirty miles down the river. The Chas. P. Chouteau was engaged for the occasion, and early in the morning the pupils, to the number of three hundred, marched down to the boat at the foot of Olive street, headed by the College brass band. When the procession arrived at the boat, a large number of ladies and gentlemen had already assembled there, invited guests of Rev. Bros. James, Virgil and other members of the faculty. Shortly after 9 o'clock the boat pulled out, and the run down the river was made in a couple of hours. The grounds are delightfully situated, and the 500 persons present enjoyed themselves hugely.

The young ladies had only one complaint to make, and which was that the brothers tabooed dancing and thus interfered with their pleasures. On the grounds the day was passed very pleasantly—boating, target shooting, base ball, etc., furnishing the fun. In the afternoon an hour was spent in class drills. The students of the various classes in the college are being taught to march, etc., and the drill yesterday afternoon was the annual contest for a handsome prize. The judges were selected on the ground, among them being R. A. Ennis, Senator Jas. Megraw, P. S. Langton, J. D. Maguire, and John D. Finney. After an hour's hard tussle, the prize was awarded to the Felix Guards, of the first preparatory B class, under Captain John P. Fitzgerald. The decision, however, caused such adverse criticism that the committee went into hiding, and were not seen on the grounds again until after dark. The general opinion was that the trophy should have gone to the cadets, whose captain was John F. Collins. On the way home the time was enlivened with instrumental and vocal music, speech-making, and a most amusing mock trial, the funny part of which was that Brother James, the plaintiff's attorney, was fined several hundred dollars for contempt of court.

The day, on the whole, was very enjoyable, and the arrangements, under the management of Brothers James and Virgil, were perfect in every detail.

ALTON NEWS.

The picnic of the Hunterstown Sporting Club, which was to have taken place last Sunday, but was postponed on account of rain, will take place at Clifton next Sunday.

The house of David R. Jones, at Coal Branch, was destroyed by fire between 3 and 4 o'clock. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary, as its origin cannot be discovered. Nothing but the bare walls are left standing, and the house may be considered a total loss. It was insured for $3,500.

A fight closed the trial of a case in 'Squire Quarton's court Thursday. Four butchers, named Bray, Fritch, Koch, Meyers and Luer, had been arrested for violating the city ordinance by slaughtering within the city limits and maintaining a nuisance. City Counselor Hope prosecuted the cases, and during the trial hot words passed between him and Jas. Brace. After a judgment of $25 and costs had been given against each of the defendants Brace told Hope that he wanted to fight and started toward him, when Hope struck him a violent blow in the face. Two or three other butchers also attacked Hope, but Marshal Riley took Hope, Brace and James Chessen under arrest and they were each fined $5 and costs.

COMMERCE.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

Flour—Choice and fancy scarce, wanted and better in price, but low grades still dull.

Wheat higher. Grades buoyant and in active demand, No. 2 red and No. 3 red finding eager buyers in order and milling dealers, and former wanted also by speculators; other grades dead scarce. Futures wildly unsettled, with violent fluctuations and heavy trading, though mainly in July; closed 1½c higher for June, 11-16c for July, ⅜c for August, ⅛c for September, ⅝c for October and ½c for year, as compared with yesterday's close.

Corn higher. Ready sale of all grades to order dealers and a milling inquiry also for white-mixed, and speculative demand for No. 2; prices very stiff. Futures strong, generally, and in demand, but sellers rather scarce, so that trading was restricted; late became weak and eased off, closing at advances of 1½c for June, 1½c for July, 1⅛c for August, ⅜c for September and ⅝c for year, but October unchanged.

Oats higher. Grades scarce and sold quickly, though the demand was small, as feeders supplied their wants from sample lots. Futures irregular, advancing sharply early, but dropping rapidly later, closing weak at ⅛c advance for June, ⅜c for July and ½c for year, but August unchanged.

Rye still nominal, with nothing doing outside of a few small sample lots.

Hay firm on light offerings, but quiet as the demand was small from feeders and the rain kept buyers away from the market. Millfeed higher and firm.

Provisions boomed buoyantly, a considerable advance in price following: higher markets elsewhere. The demand improved, too, though rather scant offerings and stiff holders tended to restrict business.

Highwines steady, with sales of 137 brls at $1 16; Cincinnati $1 16; Chicago $1 17.

Lead shows no change in price or demand, and may be quoted as $4 50 asked for soft Missouri, $4 37½ bid, and hard held at $4 30. Spelter 5¼.

CATTLE—There was about fifty car loads in and altogether of grass Texans of ordinary quality. Buyers were hanging around, and although not very urgent for purchasers, still were willing to inspect stock. As the supply was comparatively light, and not a big run anticipated for a few days to come, dealers, therefore, had a more hopeful view and are of the opinion that they have checked the going down of prices. Reports from New York denoted only ninety car loads slow, but prices a shade higher on desirable grades. There were no native shipping steers offered; consequently shippers had to turn their attention to grassers. The tops sold well enough and brought what may be considered good prices. Common and scalawags dull. Milch cows with calves somewhat scarce.

HOGS—Buyers succeeded in "evening" prices with those of Chicago, and to do this had to take off from 10@20c per 100 lbs on all grades. Packers were the leading purchasers and paid from $7 60@90 for common to good packing. The supply was light, about forty car-loads in all, and the quality not of the best. Pigs and light Yorkers were very dull and may be quoted as slow at $7@7 25; Yorkers quiet at $7 50@65; butchers and heavy were held at $8@8 30 and were not fast in going off. The quality is getting worse and worse each day.

McKENDREE COLLEGE.

The Commencement Exercises—Programme of Music Last Night.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEBANON, ILL., June 2.—The second entertainment of the annual exercises at McKendree College—the evening of song and music—by Miss Lulu Ringen and the pupils of the Conservatory of Music, last night, proved a grand success. Miss Ringen has only been connected with this institution six months, yet during that brief period has brought her department up to such a degree of excellence and perfection as to command admiration. The auditorium, which has a seating capacity for 700 persons, was last night compactly filled, the aisles and gallery also being occupied by deeply interested friends. The decorations of cut flowers, plants and beautiful wreaths, tastefully grouped and designed, with the elegant landscape paintings formed a pleasing scene. After an appropriate prayer by President Phillips, an interesting programme was presented with charming effect, and was greeted by the intelligent audience with demonstrations of approval and appreciation. "Bonnie, Sweet Bessie," by Miss Carrie Padon; the piano solo by little Miss Bertha Brownlee, the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brownlee; Handel's Italian vocal solo, by Miss Belle Shep; the vocal duet, "Come, Love," by Misses Cinnie Biddle and May Harris; the piano duet, "Cymbelina," by Misses Eva Phillips and Alice Padon; Pinsuti's vocal solo, "Bunch of Roses," by Miss Julia Nichols; piano solo, "Last Hope," by Miss Carrie Sargeant; the contralto solo, "The Raft," by Miss Cinnie Biddle; piano solo, "Les Rameaux," by Miss Stella Hecker; the Italian vocal solo, by Miss Lulu Ringen, the instructress, and the introductory and closing chorus by eighteen young ladies, were so admirably rendered as to merit unbounded applause and numerous floral tributes from admiring auditors. Miss Ringen was twice encored, and most deservedly so, for her vocal solo, as well as a slight mark of appreciation for her painstaking efforts in assuring a fete of song and music. The event was a most brilliant one and may be accepted by Miss Ringen's friends here and in St. Louis as a deserved testimonial to that lady.

Illinois Crops.

CHICAGO, June 2.—A special from Clinton, Ill., says there has not been as fine a prospect for good crops in Central Illinois for ten years as at the present time. The chilly and wet weather has been the making of the wheat crop. The rye and oats are also growing finely. Corn planting is about finished.

A POLITICAL CAMP-MEETING.

Western Missouri Preparing for an Unprecedented Flood of Eloquence.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, June 2.—There is much excitement in Kansas City over the great political camp-meeting to be held at Excelsior Springs, in Clay county, beginning on June 14 and running through the week. As it is expected that the whisky will be exhausted by Saturday night, Sunday will be devoted to a Grand Temperance Reunion, which will close the exercises of the week. The following handbill, thousands of which have been distributed throughout Western Missouri, explains the purpose and character of the meeting fully:

"Grand political camp meeting at Excelsior Springs, Clay county, Mo., commencing on June 14th, 1882, continuing four days, and closing Sunday with a grand temperance reunion.

"The following noted speakers are to be present and address the people: Col. John T. Crisp, Hon. H. Clay Dean, Hon. R. T. Van Horn, Gen. J. B. Weaver, Gen. Joe Shelby, Hon. C. H. Mansur, Col. A. C. Dawes, Hon. D. S. Twitchell, Gov. T. T. Crittenden, Gen. A. W. Doniphan, Col. J. F. Harwood, Col. W. H. Woodson, Hon. D. C. Allen, Hon. H. Martin Williams, Hon. F. M. Cockrell, Hon. J. M. McMichael, Rev. Dr. Brooks, Judge G. W. Dun, Hon. Jas. Craig.

"Many other noted speakers are invited and expected to be present. Several brass bands will provide excellent music; boating, fishing, driving, dancing, swinging, croquet and other amusements. Everybody urged to bring tents; splendid camping grounds under shady trees. Come to remain during the entire continuance of the meeting.

"How to Come—Excelsior Springs is situated in the eastern part of Clay county, ten miles north of Missouri City and six miles west of Vibbard. Come with covered wagons and bring your tents. Those coming by rail will find hacks meeting trains arriving at Missouri City, Liberty, Kearney, Vibbard and Lawson. Reduced rates over all railroads.

"These springs were discovered about eighteen months ago, since which time thousands upon thousands have visited them and been cured of their ailments. A fourth class city of nearly 2,000 inhabitants has rushed into being. The best hotels and boarding houses are here; parks and drives, and the most romantic scenery greet the beholder on every side.

"This is the opening of the political campaign of 1882, and will be the grandest meeting ever held in Western Missouri. Those who want the key-note of the future will certainly attend. Come everybody. D. O. McCray, S. T. Bassett, W. Willis—Committee on Invitation. J. E. Jones, D. O. McCray, R. M. Dollas—Committee of Arrangements."

Failures of the Week.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The failures reported to New York for seven days are 135, against 126 last week and 124 the week previous. The increase is in the West and South principally. New York city is still remarkably free from business disasters. The most significant failure in the country is Lionel Simpson, of Denver, Col. This is an exemplification of the temptation afforded by too liberal credit. The geographical distribution of failures is: Eastern States, 14; Western, 42; Middle, 27; Southern, 39; Pacific States and Territories, 11; New York City, 2.

THE "popular and affable" announces in his organ this morning that he will be in Kansas City to-morrow and the next day. As "the movements of the great should not unwatched go," we hasten to still further spread the news of this important event.

ANOTHER FAST RUN.—The Anchor Line packet City of Baton Rouge arrived from New Orleans at 12:15 yesterday, having made the run in four days and eighteen hours, including time consumed in cleaning boilers at Memphis and in making all the mail and business landings. She came from Cairo to St. Louis against a rising river in nineteen hours and thirteen minutes. Capt. Horace E. Bixby commands the City of Baton Rouge. She returns South next Wednesday.

INDISCRIMINATE puffery leads to criticism, and criticism is very apt to lead to discomfiture. To say that a boat is fast, fine and elegant in all her passenger arrangements, etc., occasionally, is all very well, but when such matters are continually poured into the columns of respectable newspapers the dose becomes nauseating, and never fails to provoke disgust. Honey is very well to have on the table, but honey every meal of the day throughout the year is not a diet that a healthy American stomach would hanker after. If the travel is ever to be directed to the river, it will not be brought about by the methods we have just referred to. The boats now on the river are in many respects very excellent, but there is still room for improvement. As long as the boats are indifferent they will never carry the better class of people, though they be lauded to the skies. The day is coming, however, when it will only be necessary to state in the advertising columns that such a steamer leaves at such an hour. The boat's intrinsic merit will commend her to the traveling world, and the real palace will take the place of the artificial one, too often now having only a newspaper existence.

Suit was commenced in the Circuit Court yesterday evening by H. M. Needles, administrator of Henry Newton, against the St. Louis Bridge Company for $5,000. Newton was killed near the Relay Depot on September 8, 1881, by being thrown from the cars, it is claimed by a defective air brake.

Leopold Leon, a merchant on West Main street, was brought before 'Squire Challoner for violating two city ordinances, for which he was fined $25 in each case. The St. Louis Browns and Alleghanys of Pittsburg will play again to-day. They will arrive in St. Louis together to-morrow evening.

The report that the Browns did not make a hit in their games with the Baltimores on Wednesday was incorrect. Comiskey made one and it was not a "shut out."

The Browns now go to second place in the fight for the American Association pennant, but to-day's work may alter that. For a club away from home they have done wonders.

During the week-day games every inducement will be made to attract ladies to Sportsmen's Park, Grand avenue. The upper pavilion will be especially reserved for them and their escorts, and no drinking will be allowed there.

In Sunday's game between the St. Louis Browns and the Alleghenys, of Pittsburg, the probable arrangement of the nines will include McGinnis and Sullivan as the St. Louis battery, and Arundel and Keenan for Pittsburg. This is not settled, however, and other changes may be necessitated. At the Sportsmen's Park arrangements are being made for the accommodation of the largest crowd of the season and temporary stalls will be arranged for the accommodation of vehicles, for which an extra charge will be made at the gates, this to cover all care and attention. In the meantime the game is the talk of the town, and when both nines appear on the field together they will get one of the most rousing receptions ever heard here.

SHEA'S SENTENCE.

The Murderer of Officer Doran Found Guilty of Murder in the First Degree.

Ballotings of the Jury—How the Prisoner Received his Sentence—Premeditation.

At a quarter to 10 o'clock this morning a messenger was dispatched from the room in which the jury in the Shea murder case was locked up to the Criminal Court room, saying that they had agreed on a verdict. Judge Laughlin dispatched Deputy Sheriff Elard for them, and soon after, with serious faces, they filed into the court-room. They took seats in the jury-box and Judge Laughlin, turning his gaze upon them, asked in a serious tone of voice: "Gentlemen, have you agreed upon your verdict?" In mute answer to this inquiry, Joseph Harrison, an aged man, upon whose head the snow of many years have fallen, arose from his seat and handed to Capt. Ben Finney, the clerk, a paper, which read: "In the case of the State of Missouri vs. John David Shea, indicted for murder in the first degree, we the jury find the defendant guilty as charged." Shea had been brought up from the jail and placed in the cage, and when the jury had taken their seats in the box he was released from the cage and given a seat at the attorneys' table in the room. He walked with an unsteady step from the cage to the chair in the court-room, and it was evident that he was laboring under the most intense mental excitement.

As the names of the jury were called and each man was asked whether the verdict was the expression of his views, and as the affirmative answer came from the lips of each,

SHEA GLARED UPON THEM

with a look of suppressed passion which was terrible to look upon. When the polling of the jury was finished and Col. Normile asked for their discharge and Judge Laughlin told them to go, that they were discharged from further service, Shea's face assumed a look of utter despair and took a ghastly hue, and his head sunk on his breast. A Deputy Sheriff went up to him and tapped him on the shoulder. He started violently, and arose to his feet and slowly followed the officer back to the cage. Soon after he was taken back into the jail, and as he walked down the aisle of the room many pitying glances were cast upon him which seemed to soften his heart, and the evident sympathy caused the tears to come to his eyes. The jury walked out into the clerk's office and claimed the fees due them for their services in the case. A reporter questioned the

FOREMAN, MR. JOS. HARRISON,

as to the length of time they had stayed out and the cause of it. "We were in some doubt as to the specific meaning of the words malice aforethought and premeditation, and this caused a division of opinion as to the nature of the crime. Some thought that the time taken to execute the act of killing was insufficient to make the crime murder."

"What did you wish to know about the definition of the word malice?"

"We were undecided as to its precise legal meaning."

When the jury went into the court-room yesterday at 4 o'clock to get the additional instructions as to the definition of the word malice, Judge Laughlin instructed them substantially in these words:

"Gentlemen, you ask for a definition of the word malice. In my charge I gave you the legal significance of the term as explicitly as I could. It may denote that condition of mind which prompts one to take the life of another without legal justification or excuse. Not hate or ill-will, as in ordinary conversation, but that condition of mind which shows a heart regardless of social duty and fatally bent on mischief." After these instructions were given the jury went back to their room. They say that after that the question of the verdict became more plain to them and only one man held out. The name of this individual was not given, as the other eleven wished to shield him from what they thought might be the unfavorable comment of the public.

THE JURY CAST ALTOGETHER ELEVEN BALLOTS

from the time they went out at 11 o'clock Wednesday until 9 o'clock this morning. The tenth ballot was taken late last night, which resulted in eleven to one in favor of murder in the first degree. Soon after the tenth ballot the man sticking out expressed a wish to come over, so when the eleventh ballot was taken this morning the whole jury were for conviction of murder in the first degree. The following is a tabulated statement of the eleven ballots:

Ballots.	1st Deg.	2d Deg.	Mansl'ter.
1	4	7	1
2	1	10	1
3	2	9	1
4	2	9	1
5	2	9	1
6	2	10
8	9	3
9	10	2
10	11	1
11	12

It will be seen that in the start but four were for conviction as charged in the indictment, and on the second ballot only one person was for murder in the first degree. By what process of reasoning they finally came around is only known to the American jury as they sit in the jury-room, but the verdict is a matter for congratulation.

When Shea was entering the jail some prisoners were just being taken to the Court of Criminal Correction. One of them asked Shea what he got. "Oh, the d——d fools gave me murder in the first degree," said he.

Mr. McBride, one of his counsel, said, "This trial was but first blood for the State; we will make a motion for a new trial and will probably get it." Mr. Marshall McDonald, the assistant prosecutor, said the verdict was a surprise to him. The surprise was probably occasioned by the verdict being given after the jury had been out so long. He said that Col. Normile took the verdict as a matter of course, as he thought it correct in view of the evidence.

COURT COSTUME.

How the Girls Put in a Good Appearance Before Judge Jecko.

Last night the police raided the rooms and dives of disreputable women who have been annoying them without sufficiently violating the law to make cases against them under the city ordinances. Among them was Sadie Wilson, who, when she appeared before Judge Jecko this morning, wore a white leghorn straw hat and a grey fur-bound dolman that was attractive if not flashing. Sadie was the first defendant called out of the dock. The eyes of the audience were directed to the hat and cloak. Her case was disposed of and the next called. A minute elapsed before the defendant walked from the dock, and when she emerged she too wore a leghorn hat and fur-bound dolman. The same lapse took place and the next defendant walked out with a similar costume. After a few moments the audience tumbled to the fact that the inmates of the dock were "swopping the togs," as one of them explained.

Teachers' Examination.

The examinations for German, English and colored teachers commenced this morning at the School Board room. The subjects of examinations will be: Grammar, algebra, oral teaching, natural sciences, geography, history and spelling. The result will not be reached until to-morrow night.

THE RACES.

Programme for the Free Derby Day To-Morrow—Arrivals.

The races to-morrow promise to be the most interesting sporting event that has occurred here for many years. There will be four races:

First—Inaugural scramble for all ages, for purse of $250.

Second—The event of the day, the Missouri Derby for three-year-olds, which closed with thirty-eight entries.

The third is for club purse for $300, mile heats, for all ages.

The fourth race is for two-year-olds that have never won a race, for $250, three-quarter dash.

The entries for the club purses close this evening, and from the number of horses now on hand it can easily be observed that there will be more starters than were ever known here before. In addition to the list already published are the following:

P. C. Fox has arrived from Louisville with ten horses and Milton Young with twenty horses.

John Funk, Henderson, Ky.; Capt. Ben. Howard, Evansville; Capt. C. L. Applegate, Louisville, and A. Sampson, Taylorville, Ill., with their several stables, arrived to-day and registered at the Hotel Barnum.

Henry Johnson came in this morning with his mare Katie Creel.

Bob Cathcart, the silver-voiced pool-seller, came in this morning.

Harry Davis, the Louisville book-maker, put in an appearance this morning.

John Wilkerson, of Kansas City, has established pool sales at the Lindell, and will commence the auction to-night.

Ed. Beaman, New York; L. J. Drummel, A. M. Waddell and Joe Blackburn, Louisville, are at the Southern, and will attend the races.

W. A. Brown, Murray Kellar, Louisville; E. G. Gardiner, Nashville, and J. J. Carroll, New Orleans, well-known turfmen, are at the Southern.

The following stables are expected to arrive from Pittsburg next Sunday: The Morris & Patton, the John Merrill, the Churchill & Johnson, the G. W. Brown & Co. and the Nichols & Bethune.

The attaches of the R. J. Watts & Co. pool-selling fraternity arrived this morning as follows: Fred Bishop, business manager; R. C. Beckman, Wm. McCullough, Chas. Gallagher, Geo. Ziebold, Chas. Volpel, Robert Steele, Emile Boulier, Sam. Hinckel and Robert Knowles.

All the stables in the neighborhood of the track have been rented for the use of the visitors, and temporary stalls are being erected, so great is the demand for room. Although the races of Pittsburg have been postponed, it is not expected that any of the flyers will be detained, as many of them are already entered here.

JACCARD'S.

In simple justice to myself and in order that the public, who may be unacquainted with the facts, might not be deceived by the use of the above heading, as it has recently appeared in the papers, I desire to state

That I am the "only Jaccard" that is and has been in the Jewelry business in St. Louis for the past eleven years, since the death of E. Jaccard in 1871.

THE ART SCHOOL.

A Valuable Adjunct of Washington University.

Exhibition of Students' Work To-Night—The Wayman Crow Medal—Talk With Prof. Ives.

The opening of the annual exhibition of students' work of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts takes place this evening at Memorial Hall. The school is at present seven years old, having been organized in 1875, and in that short space of time it has reached a degree of usefulness and of progress that even the most sanguine of the projectors did not foresee. It has done much more than what was claimed for it, and is now widely known throughout the country. It was made a school on May 22, 1879, at the time that Wayman Crow, Esq., made the gift of the building to it.

The twelfth session, just completed, has been by far the most successful since the work was inaugurated in the winter of 1875. The night and day classes have been well attended, and during the past session 276 pupils have attended the school. Of these 107 were men and 167 women. These came from the Northern, Southern and Western States, and a few from the East. The success in every department has been most flattering, and reflects great credit on Prof. Halsey C. Ives, the director, and the corps of professors. Prof. Ives was met this morning, and although he modestly disclaimed all credit, he talked earnestly in behalf of the school.

SAID PROF. IVES:

"The work accomplished by the school of Fine Arts in the several departments is of greater value to the interests of a city than a careless observer would admit. You have but to study, for instance, the history of art education and its influences upon the manufacturing industries of France, Belgium, Great Britain, or our own Eastern States, to become convinced that the work is directly and closely connected with the interests of every business man in the city. Cincinnati, Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, Boston and Baltimore have all provided for the support of practical work in the art schools."

"Is it so in this city?"

"Well, with the single exception of one gift of $400 for the support of life-class work last year (1880-81), there has been almost nothing done for the support of the educational work of the school, except gifts of time and money by teachers and others connected with the school. A great amount of money is annually used for work of much less magnitude and of a transitory nature, and it is certainly to be regretted that the Art School is so shamefully neglected."

"Practical work receives a great deal of attention in your school?"

"Yes, sir.

THE TWELFTH SESSION OF THE NIGHT WORK

has been very successful in that way. One hundred and five persons received instruction in the various classes during the year. Of these, 22 devoted their time to mechanical and architectural drawing, 54 to elementary drawing from objects and casts from parts of antique figures, and 29 to advanced drawing from the antique and life. These students represent nearly all the trades and professions requiring in their practice a knowledge of the principles of drawing. Stonecutters, carpenters, builders, painters, paper-hangers, pattern-makers, machinists, engineers, architects, decorators, teachers, photographers, engravers, dentists, lawyers and physicians, have all been represented in the classes of the evening school. The aim of the school thus far has been to afford students from these different callings such instruction as could be practically applied to their daily work. The large number of trades and professions represented and the increasing attendance warrants the supposition that the effort has not been in vain. Besides the practical workers who have found in the school a place to get the knowledge they were in need of, a large class of amateurs have taken advantage of the instruction given and pursued the work as a means of acquiring an accomplishment. This branch of the work is also of great importance as it serves to create an intelligent public opinion."

"How is the school supported?"

"It has no income except that derived from the small fee charged each student for tuition.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

has given the school free use of rooms with heat and light. There has at no time been a sufficient income from tuition fees to meet the expenses of conducting the school. That it might be continued, the teachers have in many cases volunteered their services; three have never received payment for their services from the day they began to assist in the work to the present; one, in addition to services, has given sums of money whenever needed to continue the work. With the beginning of the next session a more extended range of work should be introduced into the school; classes in modeling should be opened; more advanced work in mechanical and architectural drawing should be undertaken; instruction in working drawings for building and construction, and increased facilities for work in the general classes should be afforded. To accomplish this and assist in establishing a similar work in the day shools, without increasing the tuition fees, not less than $1,500 will be required annually."

"The institution is now a permanent one?"

"Yes. With the erection of the museum building on Nineteenth and Locust streets, and the gift of the same to the school, the permanence of the work was established; to insure its usefulness in its broadest range will require the substantial support and sympathy of our people—not the few, but the many."

The exhibition which opens this evening consists of 700 specimens of the work of the students, done during the present year.

The preliminary exercises will consist of a report by the Director, Halsey C. Ives, and of remarks by the President, James E. Yeatman, John B. Henderson and others. Then the name of the student receiving the Wayman Crow medal will be announced.

THIS MEDAL,

which was established several years ago, is given to the student in the night class who makes the best showing in black and white. There are a number of competitors this year, and the contest is so close that at noon the committee had not decided the winner. At the close of the exercises the galleries of the Museum, containing students' work, will be thrown open and the audience invited to inspect it. As said before, there are 700 exhibits, including everything from object drawing and outline to the more advanced work from the draped and nude figure.

The work is most creditable, especially that of the life class. Prof. Ives says that forty-six hours each week is devoted to life work from draped, partly nude and nude models. He says that a great deal of nonsense has been spoken and written about the matter, but that it is the only way that proper results can be obtained. The exhibition of students' work will be opened to the public to-morrow and continue for four days. It is well worth a visit and will, no doubt, be a center of attraction.

The present officers and Board of Control of the school are: James E. Yeatman, President; Edwin C. Cushman, Secretary; George E. Leighton, Wm. F. Eliot, John B. Henderson, Charles Parsons, Thomas E. Tutt, Daniel Catlin, Ethan A. Hitchcock, John H. Shepley, Halsey C. Ives.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

High Water Flooding the Lowlands—Other Items of News.

The case of Trebbe vs. Alexander Linder was tried in 'Squire Lynn's court this morning and Linder assessed $3 and costs. A gang of young roughs have been causing nightly disturbances on the Island and Linder was arrested on complaint of Trebbe.

The gambling cases of Cahokia are set for hearing to-morrow, but will probably be continued. The defendants have secured George Green, attorney, and intend making a bitter fight.

The case of Henry Oebike against James Lyons will be tried by jury in 'Squire Bunyan's Court this afternoon. Oebike obtained a judgment against Lyons some time since, but before the attachment was served a third party came into court and claimed right to his wages by a prior judgment. Lyons is in the employ of the Heim Brewing Company. The case this evening is to decide which party's claim must be first satisfied.

A meeting of property owners on the Island will take place some night next week not yet decided, for the purpose of reorganizing a volunteer fire department.

High water with all its attending disasters is one of the evils against which residents of the lowlands are making hasty preparations to guard themselves. The willows near Cahokia creek, in the southern portion of East St. Louis, is rapidly becoming submerged, and the residents, amounting to nearly two hundred, pay neighborly visits in skiffs, but are hopeful that the waters will soon recede. Several of the houses are already unfit for habitation on the first floor, as the water is oozing through the flooring. The residents of the patch in the northern porton of the island keep a close watch on a few spots of dry land, but those are slowly disappearing from view and preparations are being made to move to safer quarters. The colored village of Brooklyn is almost submerged, an inch of water covering nearly all the streets and several houses being entirely surrounded by water. The cellars in the business portions of East St. Louis contain from one to four feet of water, while the large tracts of ground in the northern part of the city are already inundated from the back water of Cahokia Creek.

Murderous Assault.

At about half past eleven o'clock last night a serious fight occurred in a colored gin-mill, No. 1,000 Morgan street. A dispute had been had over the settlement of some drinks, and a colored man named Ed Dillar became very pugnacious. Two officers were called by the proprietor, Nicholas Sague, and Dallas was taken in charge by them. As they were on their way to the Third District station house accompanied by Sague, who was going to lodge a complaint against Dillar, the latter suddenly jumped out from between the officers beside him, and plunged a knife in to Sague's left breast. Not the slightest warning was given, and the assault was totally unprovoked. The officers think the murderous darkey must have had the knife open in his left hand when arrested, as no time was allowed him to open it after arrest, and one of the officers held his right hand as the stabbing occurred. A doctor was called, who dressed the wound, but said he could not determine whether the wound was fatal or not. A warrant was sworn out today charging Dillar with assault to kill.

"Stood in Wid de Police."

Lizzie Hayden was up before the First District Police Court to-day on a charge of disturbing the peace. When the complaint was read she said: "Now, jis let me tell you all about this." The clerk announced a plea of not guilty, and Lizzie went to trial. She was accused of stealing a pet crow and refusing to give it up. The prosecuting witness testified that Lizzie said: "De law and de police ain't got no terrors for me. I stand in wid 'em." The city failed to make a case and a dismissal was entered, while Lizzie, whose black face was wreathed in smiles, stalked out to get a whiff of the fresh air.

Speaking of Uniform Suits

An intelligent conductor recently remarked in our hearing that a certain Clothing House in this city two years ago made a desperate bid for business by furnishing Blue Flannel Suits at an extremely low price. The suits wore well, and the next season (last year) the men naturally supplied themselves from the same source; but, somehow the last purchase did not result satisfactorily, for the suits soon faded out, and the buyers naturally felt that they had been duped. If any intending purchaser of a Blue Flannel Suit carried a bottle of acid in his pocket to test colors with he might risk dealing with strangers or houses other than those of established honorable reputation; unless an expert in such matters, he had better purchase of dealers upon whom he can rely (and who always stand ready to make any deficiency good).

We guarantee any suit of Blue Flannel we sell to be perfectly fast colors, and, as every one knows, our guarantee is good.
